FOREWORD

THIS IS THE HISTORY OF TOMORROW'S GENERATION. WITH THE INEXORABLE TURNING OF THE PAGES OF LIFE, WE DELVE INTO THE NEXT CHAPTER OF THE BOOK OF TIME. WE PAUSE, HEREWITH, ON THE HORIZON TO LOOK BACK AT THE PAST FOUR YEARS OF EVENTFUL LIFE AT SHORT-RIDGE. AND ALWAYS THIS ANNUAL WILL SERVE AS A MEMENTO AND AS THE LAST COMBINED EFFORT OF THE CLASS OF '42.

BATON'S UP

The houselights dim and the curtain rises for the final production of the Class of '42—our yearbook. Here, distilled into a hundred odd pages, are our deeds and dreams.

Our book has no climaxes, for this is the story of tomorrow's generation. And when we have climaxes and endings, we cease to be tomorrow's generation and become today's. This is today's history of tomorrow's world.

DEDICATION

... TO YOU, MISS MARY ELLEN SULLIVAN,
WHOSE LIFE HAS BEEN INTERWOVEN
INTO THE PATTERN OF SHORTRIDGE
DURING YOUR SERVICE OF MORE THAN THIRTY YEARS, TO YOU WHO HAVE GUIDED STUDENTS TO HIGH IDEALS AND WORTHY VOCATIONS ... WE DEDICATE
THIS, THE ANNUAL OF THE CLASS OF '42.

to the Class of 1942:
You have honored me in dedicating your Annual to me, and I am deeply appreciative of that honor.

For many years, it has been my happy fortune to be a dweller in this little city within a city, which we call Shortridge High School.

Here I have seen the spirit of America at its best—young and old, rich and poor, the strong and the weak, working together in utmost harmony.

You have helped to foster and preserve this spirit. May you bear it with you when you leave these beloved walls! May the American way of life be yours, in fullest measure, in all the days that are to come!

National Honor Society

The National Honor Society of the Class of '42 has completed its season in a blaze of glory. The seventy-nine members, under the sponsorship of Miss Minnie Lloyd, have reached their goal of thirty-three hundred books for the National Book Drive. For their other serious projects they tutored fellow students, and compiled more records of alumni Honor Society members. A basketball game between faculty members and boys of the varsity football squad was also sponsored by this group. Fred Flickinger presided over the honor students and Susan Countryman was secretary-treasurer. Of the three divisions, Bob Buckler was chairman of group A, Allen Greer headed group B, and Kennard Voyles led group C. Mrs. Hope Nevitt, Miss Nora Thomas, and Mrs. Gertrude Weathers were faculty advisers of these groups. Oscar Green was chairman of the serious projects committee, Carolyn Coxen was chairman of the knitting project, and Nelda Smith was head of the group which compiled the alumni records.

CLASS POEM

I, WITH THE LONELY STARS
WHO WATCH THE WHIRLING EARTH,
AS IT REELS THROUGH ENDLESS NIGHT
PAST FLAMING SUNS AND DEAD,
SHALL BEHOLD WITH MY TWO EYES
THE WAVES OF THE WARS OF MAN.
WHILE GOD WITH A SUN IN HIS HAND
SHALL VIEW THE CURVE OF SPACE AND CONTEMPLATE THE ATOM
AND THE UNIVERSE'S FACE.
HE WILL READ FROM FATE'S GREAT SCROLL
THE SAGA OF THE AGES.
ON BRIGHT AND BLOODY PAGES
THE STORY SHALL UNROLL.
OF LIFE THAT PULSED UNBODIED
IN THE ANCIENT HUMID OCEANS; OF MAN WHO WAS CREATED
WITH A SOUL AND DEEP EMOTIONS.
I SHALL SEE THE GOLDEN WRITING

SENIOR PLAY CAST

In Caleb Mills Hall on March 27, 1942, the Class of 1942 presented their addition to the drama of the world. This masterpiece of acting and production was a comedy, "Ever Since Eve," written by Florence Ryerson and Colin Clements. Miss Eleanor Dee Theek directed this production, which was her thirteenth senior play at Shortridge. Fortunately for the play the number thirteen did not prove to be unlucky for her. Against the background of a small town high school newspaper, the actresses in the play came to the conclusion that men must be made to think they are important, though women are really the power. The actors of the play came to an opposite conclusion. Ted LeMaster and Susan Countryman, the juvenile leads, were the recipients of this advice. Their advisors were Ruth Ann Hamilton, Robert Palmer, Marjorie Thoms, and Tim Hanika, main adult characters. Judy Badger, Sue Canny, Joe Clark, Frank Shelhorn, and Bill Conner were important factors in the plot.

Harriet Trotter was the capable student director. Everything from building the scenery to pulling the curtain was in the hands of Edward Hawkins, stage manager. The house manager was Frederick Ferree, and the business manager was King Traub. Programs made up newspaper style were done by Betty Jane Heassler, editor, and Margaret Brayton. Edward Stephenson was in charge of the publicity committee. Co-chairmen Alan Kamplain and Judy Bright and their group collected properties. Doris Fessler headed the wardrobe committee. Elynor Hazen with her committee directed the grease painting. Katherine Hill and Barbara Warne were prompters. Joyce Dean and Patricia Gabe managed the ushers. Will F. Wise selected and conducted the pit orchestra.

Senior Essay

I had always gone to a military school, but lots of the kids I knew went to public school, so when we came to Indianapolis I thought public school might be a nice change, and I tried to talk my mother into letting me go. She said well we could talk it over, and we did. She talked the most, and I didn't get to go to a public school. I didn't have any backing because my father was in Washington. He believes in public schools for kids.

The first school I went to in Indianapolis was a tiny school with about three hundred kids. We lived right behind Shortridge, and every day I saw thousands and thousands of kids going into the school, and thousands and thousands coming out again. I began to be glad I didn't go there, because there seemed to be girls and girls and only a couple of boys, and it seemed like most of the girls had red hair. (This turned out to be wrong, because there are plenty of blonds and black and brown haired girls—Patti and 'Tucky for instance. I don't know any blondes, but if one felt like calling Wa. 1009, it would be strictly all right with me.) One day my mother got Violent about something in the tiny school, and right after that, one fine day in the fall of 1939, A.D., I found myself, scared to death, going in that big front door of Shortridge. My knees wabbling and shaking and my brain turned to putty. (Did it or did it not return to normal??? . . . Page Mrs. Browning, Miss Pratt, Mr. Siemers et al.) Closing the door softly, I crept with slow and reluctant steps toward the other door. Opening it, I found myself face to face (one on me, one on him) with a boy leaning against the wall. I said, "I'mNewHere. CanYouTellMeWhereMr.RiceHangsOut?" He gave me a superior look and said "Freshman?" I was just going to say "No, Soph.", when a convoy of girls bunched us down and walked over us with sharp heels, never missing a step. When I staggered to my feet, dusted my pants, and staunched ($2.00 word, "Staunched") the blood from my wounds, the boy had gone. Limping close to the wall, watching warily for more women, I inched (and footed) my way to the attendance desk and said "I'mStarting SchoolToday,CanYouTellMeWhereMr.RiceIs?" She said "Freshman?" I said "NO, Soph."

She looked like she didn't believe me, and pointed with her pencil. I followed the point through another door and entered into "The Presence." "The Presence" was writing at a desk and didn't pay me any mind, so I stood on my right metatarsal arch and then on my left metatarsal arch and so on for hours and hours (it seemed like). I was going to say "Aaaaaahemmm" or "Haaaaaruump", but I didn't know if Emily Post would approve of this in "The Presence," so I kept right on standing for a couple of aeons. I was getting kind of tired when a voice said "WELL" (Not too friendly either) and I came back to life and gasped "MyNames'sTom Wadelton andI'mJustStartingToday." The VOICE said "Oh, Freshman." I said "NoSir,Sophomore" and he looked like he didn't believe me either, and told me to get a registration blank and fill it out. I did and took it back to him. (The Presence was Mr. Rice, and I have been going back to him ever since, and not always under the best of circumstances) I tried to dope out a program that wouldn't make me too tired (I'm a growing boy, and growing boys mustn't get TOO TIRED). For the rest of the day, I went up stairs and down stairs (always the wrong stairs), poked my head into classrooms (likewise the wrong ones) until I felt like Pilgrims Progress in person. Next morning I pushed the big front door open with vim and vigor and hit a crowd of very old women standing on the other side of it. (Juniors, no doubt). They snarled something about fresh freshmen and I said "I'm a Soph, so what" but they pretended I wasn't there and kept on jabbering. After awhile I ran into a kid from Chattanooga, Tenn. (Where I went to school before) and he said "Hello, Wadelton, Freshman??" I told him no and asked him what he was doing there. He said he was doing all right, and he showed me the ropes, or I'd be roaming the halls of Shortridge yet.

The first Semester wasn't so hot. I'd never had lady teachers before, and I kept answering "No, sir," and "Yes, sir," and some of them didn't take it so well. I didn't get to know many kids, and I felt like Hamlet's father, wandering around. I failed practically every study. When my first report card came home, the Violent Woman said "X(CEN-SORED)" She then went into a huddle with Mr. Rice, and when she came out of it, she had a "Tooter" by the ear, and after that, I was tooterred nights. It wasn't so bad, the tutor was a senior but he didn't know much more about math then I did. We used to sit up in my room and talk about airplanes at eighty cents a "Toot."

Time marched on, and I didn't make any friends or clubs or "A's" on my report card. A large war started in Europe with the Nazis on the winning side. A large war started in our house with me on the losing side. Onward and onward marched time, and I was a junior. Things were a little better and Tom Williams started his band, and I played the drums in it. Then came my senior year and I'd stopped being afraid of girls, and if they bunked me, I bunked them right back (A thing no gent would do, but I was a senior and not a gent, so it wasn't relative) This last year I got to know a lot of swell kids. "Tucky Nielsen, Patti Patterson, Tom Williams, Bob Herr, Sid Sakowitz, and lots of others.

Take it all and all, it was an important year. The japs declared war on the United States, and I passed Math. Then we approach the home stretch reaching out toward Commencement. The student body of seniors decided on the class of '42 wearing caps and gowns, and using the money they would have spent for new clothes to buy defense bonds. In a little while, the day will come when we'll say good bye to Shortridge, and we'll wise crack and grin about getting out, but down deep inside we'll feel pretty sad about saying good bye to the guys and gals of the class of '42. I will anyhow.

Editor's note: This article is presented in the inimitable style of Tommy Wadelton, author of "My Mother Is a Violent Woman" and "My Father Is a Quiet Man."

SENIOR WEEK

Senior Week is remembered by all graduates of Shortridge as the culmination of their four enjoyable years devoted to learning and to the making of life-long friends.

Last day for Seniors was June 4, when they bid teachers and underclassmen good-by. They left Shortridge halls, never again to return as students.

Vesper Services were held in Caleb Mills Hall on June 7, at three o'clock in the afternoon of that beautiful spring day. Seniors and their parents joined in an unforgettable service.

Seniors convened for the last time in a formal meeting in the auditorium on Monday, June 8, at nine o'clock in the morning, to receive report cards, tickets for commencement, caps and gowns, and to attend to last minute business. At three o'clock in the afternoon of the same day, Seniors took part in their last bit of fun-making. After Class Day officers read the will, made the prophecy, presented gifts, and gave to posterity the history of the Class of 1942, boys and girls alike provided hilarious entertainment.

On Tuesday evening, June 9, graduation exercises were held in Cadle Tabernacle, exercises which will live forever in the hearts of '42 Seniors. This Commencement was distinctive in that it was the first for Mr. Hull, our new principal, and the first in which Shortridge Seniors wore caps and gowns.

The Will-maker and future prospects.

Our Unsung Hero

Mr. John R. Kuebler

Mr. Kuebler is a big man with twinkling eyes and a contagious smile. He has played a large part in Shortridge activities for the last twenty-five years.

Born in Evansville, he attended high school in Mt. Vernon, Indiana, graduated from Indiana University in 1912 with his B. A. degree, and later received his M. A., also from Indiana. He came to Indianapolis in 1912, taught at Butler University two years, and then came to Shortridge in 1915 to teach chemistry. During 1917-19 he was in the army working with the chemical warfare division.

That the Annual has been delivered to students on time for the last ten years is due largely to Mr. Kuebler, who has been co-ordinator of this publication during these years. His job is to see that all the copy reaches the printer, that it is printed and bound on time, and that it reaches the students before vacation begins.

Mr. Kuebler coached the tennis team for more than ten years and was sponsor of Thursday's Echo before Miss Bruce. He has been national secretary-treasurer of Alpha Chi Sigma, a professional chemical fraternity, since 1926, and has edited the Hexagon, a chemical monthly, since 1922.

Mr. Kuebler has one son, John, who is in this year's graduating class.

Senior Home Room Representatives

The Senior Class of Shortridge High School engages in many and varied activities and functions during the year. It finds itself confronted with different problems and questions which, due to the large number of graduating students, cannot be solved by the class as a whole. It is for this reason that two students are elected from each senior home room early in the fall semester to represent the class in a group known as the President's Cabinet. This group is headed by the Senior Class president, and is subject to call at any time by him. All decisions for Senior Class activities are made by this cabinet, and through reports made by various chairmen, the seniors are kept abreast of everything that happens. The President's Cabinet of the Class of 1942 has done an exceedingly fine job. Showing initiative and ability, they have ably fulfilled the responsibilities of their offices.

Representatives were elected on October 14, 1941, as follows: 209-A, Patsy Bishop, Bob Baerncopf; 209-B, Mary Jane Catterson, Vic Cardarelli, Bob Buckler; 209-C, Joan Denham, Phyllis Ehrhardt; 241-A, Allen Greer, Patty Glossbrenner, Dorothy Greengard; 241-B, Lois Hilkenne, Barbara Hess; 241-C, Carolyn Jones, Carolyn Kiger; 313-A, Charles Marsh, John Lushbaugh; 313-B, Mary Dale Metzger, Allen Moorman, Marilyn Mueller; 313-C, Helen Reis, Jack Peters; 345-A, Emily Smith, Marjorie Ruch, Frank Shelhorn; 345-B, Delores Steinsberger, Will Smolenski; 345-C, Ann Winger and Robert Wood.

FACULTY SPONSORS

Headaches and worry are part of the daily life of this group of long-suffering teachers. It is their job to act as faculty sponsors for the various activities of the seniors.

Those engaged in producing the Annual are Mrs. Mary Dye Beach and Charles J. Wilkerson, literary; Miss Essie Long, art; Harold Irby, printing; Robert C. Grubbs and H. H. Seimers, photography; and John Kuebler, coordinator.

Other sponsors are Walter Carnahan, finances; Miss Eleanor Theek, senior play; and Vice-principal Joel W. Hadley, guardian angel-in-chief. Its every worry finds in him a sympathetic listener who always knows the answer.

The Name Is Mud

During the first quarter of the Shortridge-Broad Ripple game, my wandering eyes came to rest on the seat in front of me. There SHE sat. I noticed that she was very enthusiastic over her team, Broad Ripple. She appeared very darling in a Camosheen coat with an attached hood which had brown fur about the top. Her hair, a beautiful dark-brown with a cute, yellow velvet ribbon nestled there-in, was frequently revealed as the hood was constantly being knocked off by the surgings of the goal-crazed crowd. She had clear, sparkling hazel-brown eyes (a weakness of mine), with perfect, naturally-arched eyebrows. A blush from the cold wind covered her face, clear complexioned except for a few friendly freckles, in a manner so as to enhance her beauty.

I bought a sack of carmel-corn and casually (o-o-h s-o-o casually) proffered her some and struck up a conversation. She asked if she had seen me at the Riviera. Disregarding the game we began to catalogue our interests, and the subject of songs naturally arose; "Tonight We Love" was revealed to be her favorite song, as was mine (this concurrence I took to be prophetic). We, in a somewhat cramped position, scanned a list of song titles, hunting for the aforementioned song. In this hunting process her hands became cold. I, gentleman as always, offered to warm them by the simple expedient of holding them. During this ah-er-r warming process I became conscious of the fact that her hands were very white, well manicured, very soft, and very smooth.

By deriding her team I evoked a considerable amount of good natured laughter, which revealed perfectly-formed, ivory-white teeth.

After the game I was conscious of only two plays, one a goal made by Shortridge, the other, the goal Suzy had scored in my heart. (Boy! do I sound smooth on paper?)

After a week-end clouded with castles in Spain, I called her on Monday evening after school. Such pleasantries as the weather and the day's school program being dispensed with, Suzy asked me to buy a ticket to a skating party to be given by the Broad Ripple High School. I, on my toes as always, immediately came back with, "Two tickets, my dear. You really can't get in for nothing."

After a little more small talk (how could my talk be otherwise?), I suddenly thought of my friend and how he might want to go along, that is, double with Suzy and me (his being able to get a car for the evening had nothing to do with my benevolent state of mind). Therefore, I told her that I'd buy four tickets. She very painstakingly told me the exact route to take to get to her house. This I promptly forgot.

The next Friday evening I ran to meet my friend, John, and his date, Jane. It was than 7:37 and we were to pick up Suzy at 7:45, with only a distance of about fourteen miles to be covered. With fifteen gallons of gas in the car we felt ready for any whim of fate.

Off Randolph Street we turned right on Gilmore Avenue (cowpath). Oh, yes, I forgot to tell you that as I stepped out of the car to check a road sign, I fell heavily into a mudpuddle, spraining my left ankle and completely filling my left shoe with mud—cold squeezey mud. (Oh, if only

I had had sense enough to ask to be taken home then!)

This cowpath would have been difficult to maneuver even if John had used two arms to drive with which he did not. After ducking pits and deadfalls for a distance of a mile, John and Jane (by this time quite peeved) suddenly reneged and gave me the ultimatum that I was either to confirm our location at a house about two-hundred paces from the road, or start walking toward home.

I began my expedition to the house, stumbling many times in the washboard pattern of the road. (Rumor hath it that Jane and John were not unhappy at my protracted absence.)

After an interval, I walked back to the car and reported to my somewhat disgusted friends my newly gained knowledge.

A duet of imprecations greeted me. John had endeavored to turn the car about, but had succeeded only in digging a muddy grave for it. Despite all our efforts the car remained entombed. (Need I say that from the rear tires we lost thirty dollars worth of rubber—that is, at current exchange?).

Our patience exhausted, we sought the home of the proverbial Good Samaritan and his telephone. On entering his home we succeeded in muddying the floor, waking a very noisy baby, and altogether disrupting the quietude of his home. Luckily John's father belonged to the A. A. A.; we called the organization's garage to ask for a wrecker.

After a hectic interlude of twenty minutes the truck came. All was not as rosy as it seemed, however, for in the meantime another car had become enmeshed in the mire in front of us.

The wrecker having arrived, the driver of the truck sat down and lighted a cigarette as if waiting for a miracle. Finally, after much beseeching on our part, the unconcerned driver was persuaded to lift John's car two feet into the air and swing it onto solid ground.

Ah! at long last, the end of our troubles—so we thought.

The stark reality of the situation then hit us; Mr. Jackson, John's father, would have to talk with the towman. By means of the 'phone he did this, and John's father talked, too, with John—and in such a manner as to make John wince.

At long last we drove up to Suzy's house, four hours, twenty minutes, and fifteen seconds late.

For some strange, unknown reason, John and Jane refused to get out of the car. I softly stole into Suzy's living room and found her there fast asleep.

Tiptoeing out, I begged to be taken home, feeling for the two-hundred and seventy-second time, in my young life, a perfect fool.

Senior Minutes of '42

The Senior Class of 1942 elected officers on October 8, 1941. The successful candidates were Tim Hanika, president; Gladys Heidenreich, vice-president; Joan Goss, secretary; King Traub, treasurer; and Joyce Dean, Annual editor.

The traditional Christmas party was held in the school gymnasium on December 18, 1941. Simon Roache, acting in the capacity of Santa Claus, presented gifts. The party included a small floor show of Shortridge talent. The Seniors then danced to the delightful music of a nickelodeon. The president, Tim Hanika, appointed chairmen of the various committees for the party. Judy Aldrich was in charge of the gifts, Marge Lorenz and Arthur Pratt managed the food angle, John Dittrich supervised the decorating of the tree, Fred Flickinger supplied the music, Eldon Phillips aided in the gym decoration, Paul Warren was chairman of the clean-up squad, Harvey Harris took care of the publicity, and King Traub handled the finance problems.

The colors committee, composed of Gladys Heidenreich as chairman, Jane Williams, Bunny Calloway, Judy Aldrich, Ruth Ford, Verna Jean Walker, Jane Ingles, Marie Lichtenburg, Betty Walker, Ginny Thompson, Chuck Hunt, Bill Segar, Gene Ingle, Joe Seagle, Bill Patrick, Jack Klinger, Fred Flickinger, and Bob Buckler, chose navy and light blue for the class of '42.

The class play, "Ever Since Eve," was presented March 27 in Caleb Mills Hall. Susan Countryman and Ted LeMaster starred in the production which was directed by Miss Eleanor Dee Theek.

Class Day officers, elected February 25, were Frank Shelhorn, giftorian; Ginny Thompson, historian; Alan Moorman, will maker; and Patsy Bishop, prophet. Class Day was held June 8.

The committee for Commencement arrangements was composed of: Marge Thoms, Bill Wagner, Evelyn Petersen, Dale Sumner, and Tom Stump.

Vesper Service was held on June 7 in Caleb Mills Hall.

Commencement exercises of the Class of 1942 were held June 9 in Cadle Tabernacle.

Joan Goss, secretary.

Junior Minutes of '42

On Monday, November 25, 1940, the Class of '42 chose their Junior officers. Those picked to lead their fellow students were Richard Stackhouse, president; Helen Reis, vice-president; Marcia Smith, secretary; Delores Steinsberger, treasurer; and Carolyn Jones, Vaudeville chairman. The Student Council representatives were Patsy Bishop, Carolyn Kiger, Allen Moorman, and Victor Cardarelli, with Virginia Thompson and Joe Pratt as alternatives. The pin and ring committee consisted of Richard Stackhouse, Joe Pratt, Judy Aldrich, Doris Daley, Bill Wagner, Delores Steinsberger, Kennard Voyles, Helen Reis, and Marcia Smith.

The Junior Vaudeville, with nearly four hundred fifty students taking part, was presented on February fourteenth and fifteenth in Caleb Mills Hall to a capacity audience each night. The great success of the production was due to the hard work of Carolyn Jones, Vaudeville chairman, and the class sponsors, Mrs. Nell Thomas and Enoch D. Burton, and the talented participants.

"Variety Act," headed by Gladys Heidenreich and Jane Weber, was chosen the best act on Friday night. Olin D. Thundere was sponsor of the act. On Saturday night "Dreaming," led by Susan Countryman and Jim Noonan, captured the laurels. P. W. Holaday sponsored this act. Louanna McCreary headed the "Military Act," sponsored by Mrs. Thelma Clarke. "Freaks, Pranks, and Henry Danks," was led by Agnes Alig, Mary Ann Wells, and Doris Daley. Miss Louise Wills was sponsor. Joyce Dean and Betty Alderson were co-chairmen of the Pan-American act; Richard Woline and Walter Geisler were sponsors.

Individual awards went to Martin Marks for both nights, and Susan Countryman on Friday; Susan tied Jane Butler on Saturday night. Intermission acts included songs by Jane Butler and Joe Lautner, comedy by Eleanor Iovine, and the Casey Jones boys in "Don't Send My Boy to Prison," with Al Nolan, Bill Rudy, Phil Houston, Jim Mitchell, and Jack Kautz. Helen Reis and Marcia Smith had charge of the ushers.

On Honor Day the Junior Class presented three silver loving cups to outstanding Seniors. The cups went to Bill Evans for having the highest number of honor points, and to Mary Worsham and Mary Lu Marshall, both of whom had a straight A plus record. On Awards Day, Fred Flickinger was chosen the outstanding boy of the Junior Class.

Garcon!

This is the story of a magic carpet—a magic carpet, so to speak, that miraculously transported one hundred band boys from Shortridge High School, Indianapolis, Indiana, to the launching of the U. S. S. Indiana at Newport News, Virginia, on November 21, 1942.

The events that took place there will be written in the annals of Shortridge High School as well as of the whole United States, and they are stamped on the memory of every boy in the band.

After eighteen hours of continuous train riding beginning on November 20, the one hundred boys arrived in Newport News to take part in that memorable occasion—the launching of an American battleship. Full of pent-up enthusiasm, they were taken in chartered buses to the three-hundred acre shipyards. Here in these yards, where ships of many countries may be seen in repair, the great mistress of the waves was waiting to be launched.

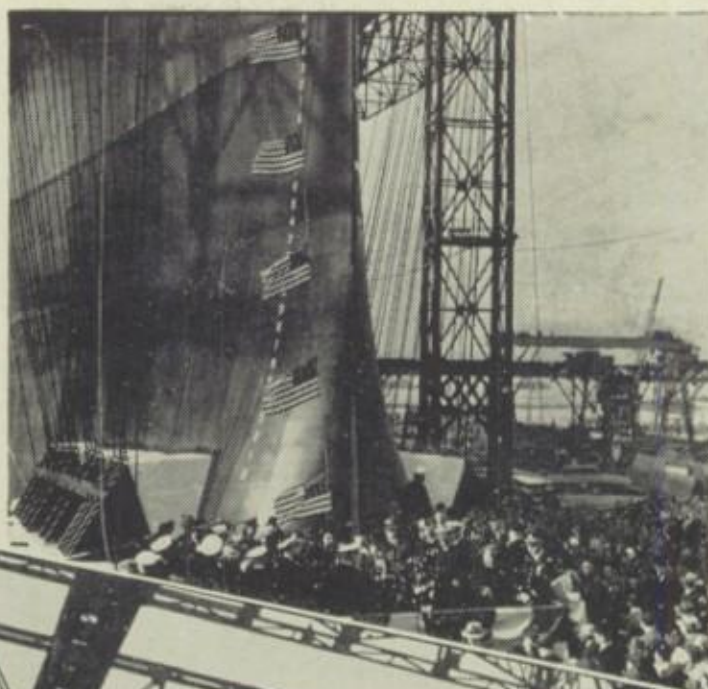

The buses wound in and out among the buildings until the boys could see the mammoth superstructure which surrounded the U. S. S. Indiana. Inside the superstructure stood the impressive battleship, proudly ready to challenge any enemy. Flags and banners of all sorts were waving festively from her decks. This was a real preview of a real battleship.

The band hurriedly and eagerly assembled in a special stand built on the port side of the ship. On all sides were gathered thousands of patriotic Americans, including spectators, workmen, governmental dignitaries, and shipyard officials.

The Shortridge band was scheduled to play

U. S. S. INDIANA

for the launching, which was to be broadcast over a nation-wide hook-up at 10:30 in the morning, Eastern Standard Time. Indiana's own Governor Schricker made an excellent speech, which was followed by one from Secretary of the Navy, Frank Knox. During this time the spectators could hear the knock-knock of invisible workmen beneath the ship, removing the safety catches preliminary to the launching.

ON THE AIR

*With the law-makers
at the capitol.*

When Secretary Knox had finished his speech, Mrs. Margaret Robbins, daughter of Governor Schricker, was introduced. It was her privilege to christen the ship with the traditional bottle of champagne. The bottle, encased in a vari-colored mesh covering, was hung from the top of the ship by a red, white, and blue rope. Small flags hung gaily from the rope at intervals.

At exactly 10:53 A.M., Eastern Standard Time, the high tide reached its zenith. Every onlooker (especially the Shortridge bandmen) was tense with excitement when Mrs. Robbins broke the beribboned bottle of champagne on the bow of the ship. Simultaneously, the Shortridge band struck up "The Star Spangled Banner."

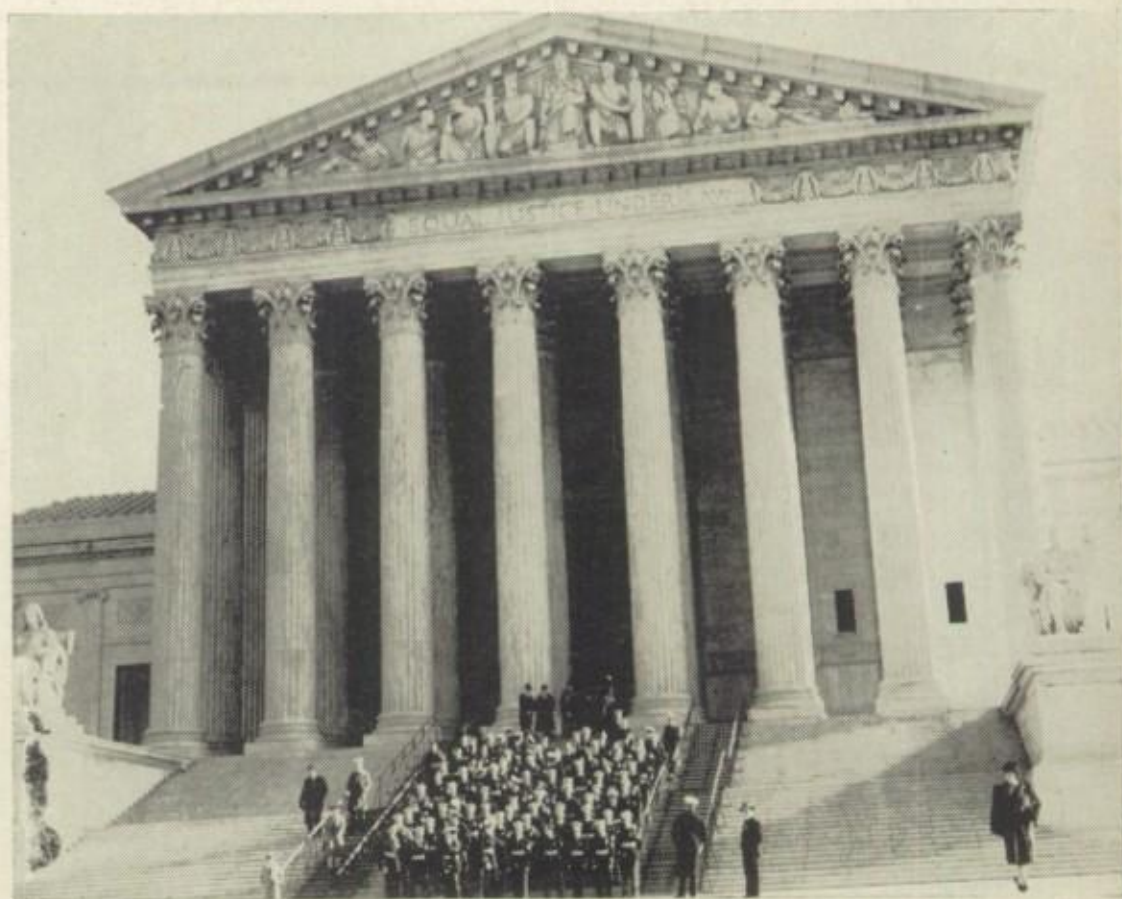

In the same breathless moment the very last supports were knocked from beneath the ship, and the new, colossal dreadnaught of the United States Navy—the U. S. S. Indiana—slid down the ways to the strains of the national anthem. It careened gracefully into the wide James River and for the first time actually split the waves that will wash its sides forever. Since none of the Shortridge boys had ever seen a ship launched before, this was a high point in their lives—one that will live in their memories.

At noon the bandmen were guests of H. L. Ferguson, president of the Newport News Shipyards, at a turkey dinner in the Warwick Hotel. Afterward they visited the famous Mariners' Museum, the most complete institution of its type in the world. Then they boarded a ferry bound for Norfolk, Virginia, where all one hundred of them were assigned state-rooms for the leisurely boat trip up Chesapeake Bay, into the Potomac River, and on to the nation's capital. They arrived there early in the morning, ready for a day full of adventures and sight-seeing.

The most important event of the day was a visit to the United States Capitol building, an impressive structure of classical design. They were guided through the beautiful central rotunda, the hall of statuary, and the chambers of the Senate and the House of Representatives.

From the Capitol they were taken to the immense Library of Congress and on to the gleaming white Supreme Court building. On historic Pennsylvania Avenue they viewed the National Archives building and the Department of Justice building, headquarters of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The ascent to the top of the Washington Monument, the highest ever erected to the memory of man, was one of the most breathtaking events of the day.

In Ellipse Park, commonly known as the President's backyard, the band played a concert as a serenade to the Chief Executive, who was at home. Presenting almost their complete repertoire of marches, the boys kept their eyes glued on the White House.

Finally they made their way to the imposing Grand Union Station, where they boarded a special train bound for home.

Music! Music for victory . . . music for morale! This year, as American soldiers join the struggle in all parts of the globe, Shortridge is doing its part in providing music which reflects the spirit of the American people. Music furnishes the theme for the 1942 Annual.

The Shortridge Band, under the direction of Robert J. Shultz, highlighted its season by furnishing, on the invitation of Governor Schricker and the United States Navy, the music for the launching ceremony of the U. S. S. Indiana at Newport News, Virginia. Money for the trip was raised by popular subscription with the help of a diligent Dads' Committee. In addition to the "Thank You" Concert played following the launching, the band has served at auditoriums and P.-T.A. meetings, for the Indiana State Teachers' Convention, and at the May Music Festival. It has distinguished itself by marching and playing in the Navy Day and Armistice Day parades and at all the home football games. The opening of the Red Cross Drive, the awarding of the Navy "E" to the Mallory Company, and the Federal Inspection of the Shortridge R. O. T. C. were also aided by music furnished by the band. This year the one hundred members of the organization appeared for the first time in their bright new uniforms, bought with money raised largely through the efforts of W. W. Seagle, a Shortridge father.

The Brass Ensemble, a group selected from the "A" band, provided several programs on its own for various civic, church, and luncheon organizations, and played for several broadcasts.

Mrs. Laura C. Moag deserves much credit for the highly successful year enjoyed by the Shortridge Choir, Ensemble, and Boys' Glee Club. Opening with a program for the State Teachers' Convention, the voice groups have participated in the Christmas Pageant, "Why the Chimes Rang," on several radio programs, at various churches, for the Lincoln and Washington

Memorial program in February, for the Honor Day program, for the Senior Vesper Service, at Easter and Good Friday programs, and for the entertainment of soldiers at Fort Harrison. These vocal groups climaxed their season by presenting a specially arranged choral ver-of the hundredth anniversary of his birth.

Other programs were presented for the P.-T.A. and at the May Music Festival, both as a concert organization and as an accompaniment for the combined choruses.

The orchestra has furnished a number of players for the All-City High School Orchestra. In other musical organizations of the city the members of the Shortridge Orchestra contribute their services to the community.

This year's Senior Class possesses the distinction of having the largest number of its members in the "A" orchestra of any class in the history of Shortridge. The orchestra concludes its season each year by furnishing music for the Commencement exercises.

The Singing Strings, a group of sixteen violins selected from the orchestra, has been in great demand for programs throughout the city.

Miss Geraldine Trotter, director of the Girls' Glee Club, has built up an organization of fifty-six voices. Appearing in crisp white blouses and dark skirts, these girls have taken an active role in furnishing music for church and community activities. They sang as a robed choir in the Christmas Pageant, "Why the Chimes Rang." They have been heard over radio stations W.I.R.E. and W.I.B.C., and they have participated in auditorium programs for the student body, for Easter services, for the P.-T. A., and for various civic organizations. They concluded their season by singing in the Memorial Day Assembly. Selected by audition, many of the members of the Glee Club have had wide experience in solo singing.

For all of these organizations, this year has been one of the most outstanding in the history of their existence. Shortridgers may point with pride to the groups which are kindling the spirit of patriotism, courage, and faith through the eloquent medium of music.

sion of Beethoven's Fifth "Victory" Symphony at the May Music Festival in conjunction with the band and orchestra. This was a tribute to the oppressed people of the world to whom this music has brought hope and courage.

Several members of the voice organizations are members of the Indianapolis Symphonic Choir, and others participate professionally in radio work.

The Shortridge Orchestra of more than eighty players, under the direction of Will F. Wise, has enjoyed a successful season with several concerts for the students in the auditorium—one of which featured the music of Antonin Dvorak in celebration

JUNIOR DIRECTORS

November 18, 1941 was an eventful day for the Junior Class of 1943. That day election of their officers was held and there were many representatives up for office. Bill Lieber won the presidency; Jeanne Gates, the vice-presidency; Maxine Bridgman became secretary; Don Ambuhl, treasurer; and Joan Bartley, Vaudeville Chairman. The members chosen for the Student Council were Bruce Hilken, Ned Hendrickson, Catey Glossbrenner, Jean Clark, and Jeanne Faulconer. The alternates were Suzanne Herman and Russell Williams.

The Vaudeville was a real success and Joan Bartley and our sponsors, Mr. Burton and Mrs. Thomas, deserve much praise.

The curtain opened with the Moorefield Follies, a take-off from the famous Flo Ziegfeld Follies. The chairmen were Patty Moores and Joan Welch. The sponsors were Miss Buchanan and Miss Davidson.

The Story Book Act with favorite characters from Mother Goose was next. Chairmen were Lorna Dunmeyer and Margot Finot. The sponsor was Miss Bruce.

The Doll Shop was the well-known awakening of the dolls at the witching hour. Chairmen were Phyllis Dell and Mary Gardner. The sponsor was Mr. Holaday.

A Night at Victory Club, highlighted by the grand orchestra of Buddy Wilson, was next with Joyce Overbay, Austin Gillespie, and Barbara McDougal as chairmen, and Miss Maranville and Miss Armstrong, sponsors.

Twilight in Turkey with the Sultan, his jester, and his harem was headed by Pat Flummer and Suzanne Smith, with Mr. Thundere as sponsor.

The last and prize-winning act for both Friday and Saturday nights, was Swiss Interlude. The chairmen were Katherine McClure, Frances Zook, and Keith Green. The sponsor was Miss Cook. A set of original Swiss bells played by a chorus of girls was the novel feature of this act.

Jeanne Gates and Maxine Bridgman had charge of the ushers.

Junior Vaudeville

Capacity crowds, filling spacious Caleb Mills Hall completely, loudly applauded both performances of that magnificent show, the Junior Vaudeville of 1942. The show was presented the nights of February 20 and 21, ably chairmaned by Joan Bartley. The cast, stage managers, publicity boys, orchestra players, and make-up helpers, together with lighting experts, ushers, and detail workers, cooperated splendidly to provide two evenings brimming with entertainment and talent.

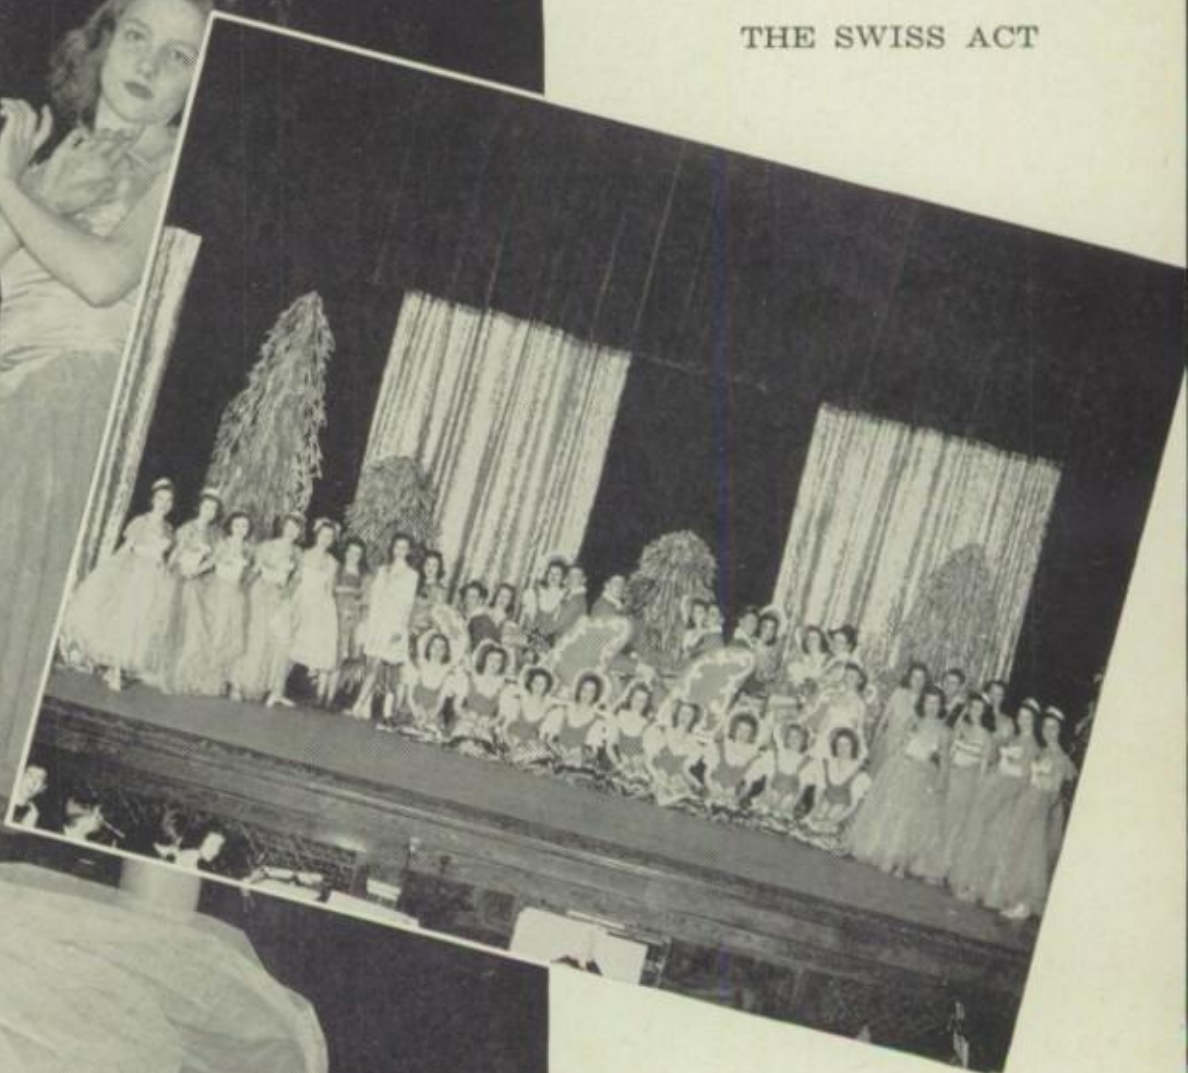

Act chairmen and sponsors worked many afternoons to improve their acts, and as a result each was a well-directed and well-balanced exhibition.

The Vaudeville itself was made up of six acts, which included dancing, singing, comedy, acrobatics, orchestras, and piano solos. The spirit of the show was kept moving by lively intermission sketches.

Tom Mantel did a fine job in editing the program, while Anne Dawley captured first prize in the cover contest. The Junior Class is also indebted to its capable sponsors, Mrs. Nell Merrick Thomas and Enoch Burton.

The 1942 Junior Vaudeville has now become part of the tradition which helps to immortalize Shortridge.

BAND ACT

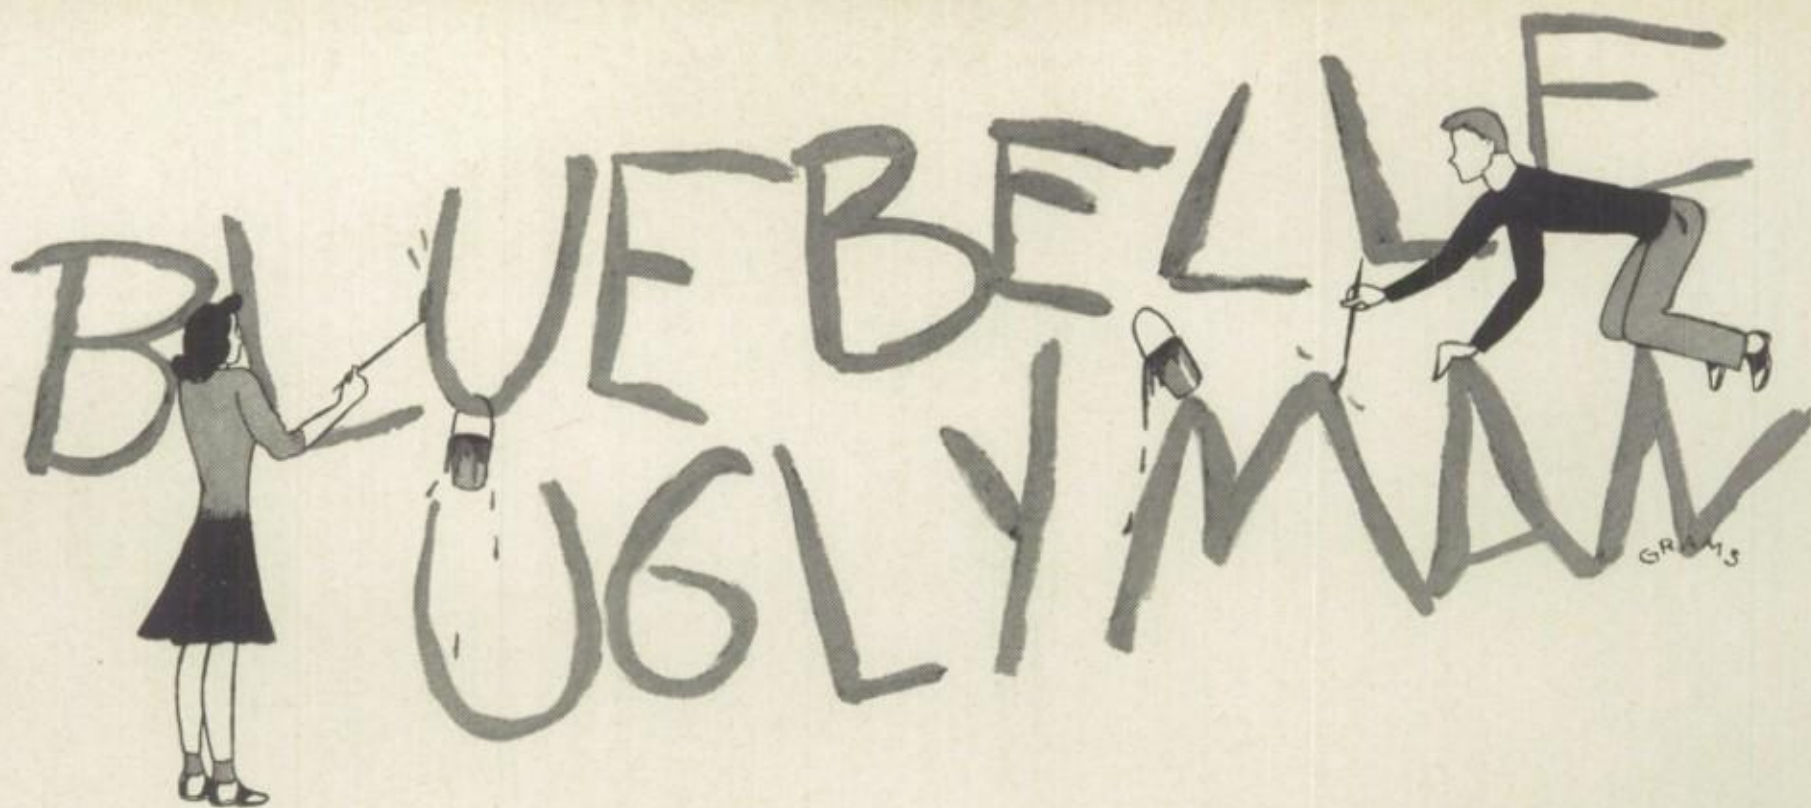

Intermission acts were a comedy dance by Eleanor Iovine; trumpet trio by Buddy Wilson, Austin Gillespie, and Tom Wake-land; piano solo by Norman Outcalt; and a drum and bass duet by Jack Jelliffe and Bob English.

The best individual performance for the girls went to Elizabeth Iovine, Friday, and Elizabeth Iovine and Susan Countryman Saturday. Bob English won the boys' prize both nights.

Uglyman

Bill Kerbox, the stout left-half of last year's football squad and well-known letterman about school, has all the prestige and personality that go with the title of Uglyman. Blonde haired and blue eyed, Bill has won many friends by his ready smile off the field and his fighting spirit on. During the 1941 season he accounted for quite a few points in the Blue Devil scores; he also ran up the counts for the '41 and '42 track meets as well. But Bill is not only an athlete; he is as much at home on the dance floor as on the cinder path. The D.A.W.G. club claims his membership.

An ever-present, winning smile and a pair of flashing brown eyes peeped over the brim of a golden loving cup as the owner received the title of "Popularity Queen of Shortridge, 1942," on April 17. Helen Reis, an active girl around Shortridge halls, was chosen the Bluebelle of 1942. The Class of '42 claims her as Junior vice-president and Home Room representative. Socially she is listed among the Club "21," G.A.L.S., and D.O.D.D. Clubs. Helen placed third in the Bluebelle selection last year, and this year she has copped top honors. Congratulations, Helen.

Family

On December fifth Shortridge, like Cinderella, was transformed. Desks having been removed, festooned crepe paper, blazoned signs, eatable smells, and fancy costumes betrayed that the Family Frolic was in full swing. New concessions, The House of Insults equipped with bouncers, and Miniature Bowling offering prizes, were successful. The Baton Show regaled its audiences with scintillating rhythms while Shortridge glamour girls were laying them in the aisles during the Style Show. In the gym good shoe leather was danced right off to the tunes of Bud Stone's Band. The Cagis charmed with their roses. Gamblers infested the Fish Pond. At the machines of skill in the Nickel Arcade, the Pre-Time ball labyrinth, the dart game, and the puzzle booth, show-offs displayed their talents. With bated breath everyone heard his fate from the fortune tellers. Scotsmen gathered at the free R.O.T.C. and Safety exhibits. The International Casino and the Gay Nineties Cafe had patrons eating, drinking, and being merry with food, cider, and songs. Hurried frolickers grabbed refreshment from the weiner cart and coke booth, while provident souls indulged in buying cakes and candy at the P.-T.A. rooms.

Such an extravaganza had to cause everyone some, and a few, a great deal of work. The few were: Mrs. Harold Plummer, president of the P.-T.A., Mrs. John A. Mueller, Ways and Means chairman, with co-chairmen, Walter Geisler and Paul Seehausen, and Don Knight, treasurer. All their activity had to do someone some good and it did. The Shortridge Student Aid Fund received $1,140.

This year we are welcoming into our midst Dr. J. Dan Hull, who brings a wealth of experience to his new position as Shortridge's master of ceremonies.

Dr. Hull, A. B., M. A., Ph. D., answers either to "Doctor" or to "Mister," but he prefers the plainer title.

Born in Mountain Grove, Missouri, he attended grade school and high school there. In 1920 he received his bachelor's degree from the University of Missouri. During 1918-19 he returned to Mountain Grove as principal of the high school there.

Shortridge does not have the distinction of being the first Indiana school to claim Mr. Hull. From 1920 to 1924 he served as principal of the Sullivan, Indiana, High School. Continuing his study at the same time, he received his master's degree from the University of Chicago in 1923. During the time that he lived in Sullivan, Mr. Hull was married to Miss Alene Oliver, an Indiana girl. The Hulls have two children, John and Nancy, both students at Shortridge.

In 1924 Mr. Hull returned to Missouri in the position of principal of the Senior High School in Springfield, where he remained until last summer. During this time he was able to continue his education, and in 1933 he received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy from Yale University.

Last year, when Mr. Buck retired, Shortridge was very fortunate in obtaining the services of Mr. Hull as its new leader.

'42 In Review

The school year started rolling on September 8, 1941, under the guidance of a new principal, Dr. J. Dan Hull, who has successfully piloted Shortridge through the year. Always there will be a place in our hearts for George Buck, our former principal.

How could we forget those football games — especially our game with Sitko of Fort Wayne. Watch out next year, Tech.

Citation awards—presented by Principal Hull. (Mr. Shultz, band director, looks as though he might be wrestling with a snake.)

Our band was outstanding this year . . . even had brand new shiny suits to dress up the parades. This was one of those super auditoriums the band furnished us.

All tucked in and ready for a bedtime story—the band boys won't forget this—enroute to Newport News.

Senior Class Office Elections—October 8, 1941, and an able foursome they have proved to be: Joan Goss, secretary; Tim Hanika, president; Gladys Heidenreich, vice-president; and King Traub, treasurer.

Those lucky 70 that were elected to Honor Society chose this lad on December 10, 1941, as their president—Fred Flickinger, of course.

Dr. Hull gets his fortune told and a carnation to boot from Nancy Rodecker. It was a neat Halloween auditorium, the highlight of auditoriums for the year.

Robert L. Nipper, the gnattily attired gent carrying the ball and a highly esteemed teacher and coach of football, was about to drop one in the bucket as this was flashed. Naturally, the faculty members won the Honor Society Faculty-Letterman game. Who can remember a time when they didn't?

The Bluebelle trips the light fantastic at the final social event of the season—April 17. (The Uglyman was running track.) Congrats, kids. What we need is more Bluebellies and Uglymen.

ROTC

This is more than a review of R. O. T. C. activities. It is a tribute to the perseverance of Sgt. Albert Neff, who for seven years has told the officers and enlisted men of the unit, "You can do better than that!"

In 1937, the Federal Inspection rating of the Shortridge Reserve Officers' Training Corps was 97.6%. "You can better that," said Sgt. Neff. "Here's what's wrong —"

In 1940 the Corps' grade was even higher. "Correct those mistakes and you can win the Reserve Officers' Drill Plaque," said Sgt. Neff. "You can do better!" At the last inspection a reviewing officer said, "That drill looked snappier than some West Point parades I've seen." If you would like to see the Shortridge plaque just drop down to the M. T. room any afternoon.

Since Sgt. Neff's advent to Shortridge High School, military training boys have always been privileged to wear a small crimson star on their right uniform coat sleeve. That star has shone for seven years. It shows that Shortridge has an "Honor-rating" unit.

During the past winter the Indianapolis R. O. T. C. units were shown movies on such military subjects as close-order drill, gas protection, anti-tank defense, attack aviation, first aid, military courtesy, and other subjects. Officers who teach classes on days when no films are presented unanimously agree that the cinemas are a boon to instructors; first semester men can see what is expected of them before they are asked to do it. The projector operator and head question answerer is Technical Sgt. Albert Neff.

The Shortridge R. O. T. C. Rifle Team placed fifth in the Fifth Corps area shoot, its first rifle match. In this shoot were entered all units with range facilities in Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, and West Virginia. Another Dead-eye Dick contest was the Randolph Hearst Trophy Shoot with five men firing for a possible two hundred points each.

Sgt. Neff, whose ability and interest have made the Shortridge unit one of the finest in the country, and the four hundred earnest R. O. T. C. boys, whose initiative and persistence have put their outfit at the top, are deserving of highest praise. Best of luck to them.

MRS. CROCKETT

You've seen her often, no doubt, as you were rushing into the building a minute before the 8:15 bell, or as you headed for the auditorium, or bluffed your way past the cafeteria door guards and passed down the east first floor corridor. And, if you have seen her, you have smiled at her, for no one can resist that radiant expression which characterizes Mrs. Crockett.

Mrs. Ethyl Crockett belongs to Shortridge in a three-fold manner. Her first connection was as a faculty wife through her husband, W. P. Crockett, who taught physics here until his death in 1927. After his death she came to us as the matron of Shortridge. She is also a Shortridge mother, for during the years the eight Crockett children have come to Shortridge. Seven are graduates and June is a member of the class of '43.

Mrs. Crockett is serving her nation as it is given to few to serve. Four of her sons are enlisted in the armed forces of the United States of America and one in the R. C. A. F. Her calm friendly appearance belies the anxiety and worry that must exist in her heart. But, no matter the heartbreak, she is proud of Paul on the U. S. S. Mizor at sea, David in the Navy Air Corps at Jacksonville, James in the R. C. A. F., Harold, a First Lieutenant in the medical corps, and Staff-Sergeant Irving in the Marines.

She's carrying the banner aloft—she is the outstanding War Mother at Shortridge.

Defense In Shortridge

"Shortridgers hear history in the making as president asks for war with Japan" . . . "Graduates serve in U. S. Forces over the world" . . . "S. H. S. Grad killed at Honolulu" . . . "Dr. Hull announces defense committee" . . . "School lays plans for air raid defense" . . . "Cookies for Rookies is Home Ec. Campaign" . . . "Shortridgers start knitting for defense" . . . "S. H. S. Red Cross Drive Terminates" . . . "School conducts air raid practice" . . . "Vaudeville proceeds will purchase bonds" . . . "Defense Stomp will give Defense Stamps" . . . "Classes practice putting out fires."

All these headlines were seen in the Shortridge Echo during the war year of 1942. They are a vivid composite picture of Shortridge in war time.

This campaign for defense has had a lighter side along with its many serious moments, for who will forget the sight of Mr. Julius gleefully cranking the warning siren on a bouncing cafeteria cart, the gaiety of the Defense Stomp, or the "defense plans" offered in Thursday's Echo?

Seriously, Shortridgers contributed a total of $243.08 in an all out Red Cross drive; the Echo printed a list of alumni now in the armed forces; chemistry classes learned the latest technique in the treatment of incendiary bombs, extinguishing blazing piles of magnesium on the campus; over two hundred patriotic Shortridge girls organized into the Knit-Wits to knit for the armed forces; students entered a contest for a slogan that would represent the purpose of high schools in the war; and after-school classes were organized in blue print reading, typewriting, and machine calculation, to give graduates needed defense skills.

The entire student body and faculty of Shortridge have worked as a unit in buying defense bonds and stamps, in knitting, donating to the Red Cross, and serving in many other important defense capacities. We are contributing our share to Uncle Sam.

Row 5: Glen Grosbach, John Miller, Geraldine Trotter, sponsor; Margaret McGuire, Bob Johnston, Bob Blake, Frances Burbridge, Frank Schimpf, Jack Peters, Don Kelly, John Ayers, Jim Stout, Bob Barnes.

Several years ago a new and unique type of club, the Baton, joined the vast Shortridge group of activities. A striking example of the rising interest in music and musical organizations, the club has gradually increased, until today the activities of its ninety-eight members are closely watched by the student body. The club, sponsored by Miss Geraldine Trotter, has had a most successful season. They provided the family Frolic "Baton Hour of Melody," in which they played to capacity audiences. They also presented an auditorium program for the entire school. This club is noted in civic organizations for the presentation of excellent programs.

On every Tuesday from October to April the members of the Boys' Bowling League, sponsored by Mr. Groth and Mr. Holaday, bowl at the Parkway Recreation Center at 34th and Illinois streets. The club is divided into eight teams competing against each other in regular league style bowling. The League concludes its season with a tournament and awards prizes to the best bowlers in both singles and doubles classes.

Row 3: Margaret Jones, Amelia Tiplick, Frances Phipps, Cathy Robertson, Tina Brazil, Billie Martin.

To stimulate interest and to promote skill in bowling are two of the chief aims of the Girls' Bowling League. The club, the first of its kind to be organized in the state for high school girls, is sponsored by Miss Mary Crites. The forty members are divided into eight competitive teams which are captained by Billie Martin, Barbara Johnson, Ann Richardt, Evelyn Shertzer, Mary Kay Bach, Betty Grayson, Ida May Payne, and Grace Yovanovich. The league sponsors a tournament each year consisting of three "round robins," and pins are awarded to each girl on the winning team by the Women's International Bowling Congress. A plaque is presented to the school with the girls' names on it by this international organization which has also awarded the club the Moral League Sanction. Pins are awarded to the girl with the highest average, to the girl having the highest three game total of points, and to the one who achieves the highest single game total, by the club members. Girls who ranked high this year included Ida May Payne, Betty Grayson, Billie Martin, Mary Lou Douglas, and Barbara Johnson.

The purpose of the Chemistry Club is to increase the knowledge of interested chemistry students. This past year the club has had several speakers, including Mr. Wade of the chemistry department, who spoke on the "Romance of Gems." The members demonstrated experiments from time to time. Many of the club members were present at the Junior Academy of Science meeting held at Depauw University in October. The club is a charter member of this national organization. Richard W. Woline acted as sponsor for the fall semester.

For the fourth year, the members of the Croquis Club enjoyed drawing from models and visiting exhibitions. They visited John Herron Art Institute, the Hoosier Salon, and the Indiana Artists Exhibition. This fall the members were entertained by the French Club and heard Mr. Peat, director of the Herron Art Institute, give an illustrated talk on paintings by famous artists. At the beginning of each semester, a party is given for new members who are chosen after submitting drawings to a committee composed of members of the art faculty and Miss Jane Messick, the club sponsor. An exhibit of paintings by the members is held each spring in the Selleck Art Gallery.

The Drama League, under the sponsorship of Miss Eleanor Dee Theek, has been very active this past year. Among the speakers who addressed the club were Mr. Chatam, who demonstrated a lie detector apparatus; Mr. Wilkerson of the English department; Mrs. Bjorn Winger who reviewed a book; Mr. Harry Phiel from the Scottish Rite; and Mr. Edward Green, director of dramatics at Manual Training High School.

A tea to honor the newly elected officers was held early in the school year. The club members also held Christmas and Valentine parties and presented a play for the February Parent-Teachers' meeting in Caleb Mills Hall.

JUNIOR EQUESTRIENNE CLUB

The Junior Equestrienne Club, which is under the sponsorship of Mrs. Thelma Clarke of the physical education department, is open to membership of freshman and sophomore girls. This is the fourth year of activity for the club. Weekly rides at the Arlington Stables were enjoyed by the members. Their instruction in the ring and horse show rides was received from Miss Margaret Erhart. Club members also participated in the Arlington Riding Tournaments in a special class for members of Junior Equestrienne Clubs. In their junior year in Shortridge the young horse riding enthusiasts join the Senior Equestrienne Club.

SENIOR EQUESTRIENNE

Members of the Senior Equestrienne Club, enthusiastic riders interested in improving their horsemanship, rode on Wednesday at Arlington Stables during spring and fall. The winter months were spent under the able instruction of Miss Margaret Erhart. The members gave a dinner before the monthly Arlington Tournaments, in which the club was always well represented. This year Barbara Hess won first prize in one of these tournaments. Mrs. Thelma Clarke, of the physical education department, is sponsor of this six year old club.

FICTION CLUB

"Writing and repartee" and the program of the Fiction Club are synonymous since all members have jobs to do along this line. The Christmas Echo is the big project of the club in which no small amount of time is devoted to the making of good literary contributions to this publication. As might be expected, writing that fits the individual style of the members is encouraged in the club. The try-out stories are of an exceptionally high standard. Dr. A. Dale Beeler, Butler University professor, spoke to the club on the racial groups of Europe and the problems to be met there. Members attended "The Rivals" at the English theatre as a group. Mr. Charles Wilkerson, head of the English department, was the speaker at the tryout meeting for new members. The successful tryouts were honored with a party. Flower Arranging Club

The Flower Arranging Club was organized in October to give students further opportunity for the study and practice of flower arrangement. The meetings were held on alternate Thursdays in the Home Economics dining room. At one meeting Miss Campbell showed kodachrome slides of flower arrangements. At other meetings the members held contests in fruit and flower arrangement and made plans for entering some of their studies in the Junior Division of the Indiana State Fair Flower Arrangement Show. GERMAN CLUB

The German Club is open to all students who have had one semester of German.

The club holds monthly meetings at which time German songs are sung and varied programs are presented. Mrs. Irene Strieby, research librarian of the Eli Lily Company talked to the members on the "Value of Modern Language to a Research Chemist."

The club contributed to the "Family Frolic" by cooperating with the other modern language clubs in the "International Casino." In the spring the members gave a tea in the Selleck Art Gallery for the mothers of the pupils in the German department.

As has been the custom for many years, the club and all the students of German held a picnic at Riverside Park in May.

GIRL SCOUT CLUB

The Senior Girl Scout Club is under the sponsorship of Miss Eleanor Bechtel. The club is composed of all the Senior Girl Scouts in Shortridge High School. This year the club, assisted by the R.D. HISTORY CLUB

The purpose of the History Club, sponsored by Paul Seehausen, is to further investigate the annals of history and to discuss present day events. Helen Warvel, the program chairman, arranged the entertainment and provided the guest speakers for the meetings. Among these speakers was Mrs. Bjorn Winger, who spoke about the founding of early Indiana settlements. The members of the club sponsored the Penny Arcade at the Family Frolic, and as is customary, presented their profits to the Student Aid Fund. Their annual party was held in January. Meetings were held every other Tuesday at conference period.

The Hi-Tri Club, under the sponsorship of Miss Dale Waterbury and Mrs. B. Juday, is part of the Girl Reserve organization which includes junior membership in the Y. W. C. A. The aim of the club is to help girls develop better health, a well-rounded personality, and a sense of responsibility for the community in which they live. This year the members have enjoyed trips to places of interest in the city as well as interesting meetings with special speakers. Mrs. Stucky of the State Employment Bureau spoke at one meeting. The Hi-Tri Club members were also hostesses at a tea and style show given at the Wm. H. Block Company for Girl Reserve groups from Indianapolis and several nearby towns. The annual potato chip sale was held in March to help provide funds for a local summer camp. Pauline Bonnel was elected as one of two Indianapolis girls to attend a Regional Camp in June.

The Hi-Y Club, sponsored by Howard Wright of the biology department, is the high school branch of the Y. M. C. A. organization. At the meetings, the members either enjoy guest speakers, or go down to the main Y. M. C. A. building to participate in the regular athletic activities which take place there. The boys took charge of a popular dart booth at this year's Family Frolic.

Kartune Klub

The Kartune Klub meets the second and fourth Thursdays of each month under the sponsorship of Miss Essie Long, of the art department. Members work to improve their drawing ability and to promote interest in their hobbies. This year they have been especially busy with cartoons on defense and army life. The club worked on Christmas decorations which were sent to posts in Iceland. Other projects were the Christmas Echo cartoons and posters and the decorations for booths at the Family Frolic.

Le Cercle Francais, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Gertrude F. Weathers and Miss Lorree Maranville, gives further opportunity to hear and speak the French language, to learn more about French culture and civilization and to develop interests which will carry over into later life. Programs and minutes of the meeting are conducted in French, and the business is carried on in English. The programs are made up of plays, puppet shows, French movies, and lectures by guest speakers.

In spite of the difficult situation in which France finds herself today, the sentiment of this group of fifty students is "Vive la France et la culture francaise."

The Math Club, sponsored by Miss Ellen Ocker, carried out a full program this year. The club meetings were held every other Monday and some of the guest speakers and their subjects were Mr. Siemers, "Mathematics In Photography"; Mr. Shoemaker, "Duties of the Club Officers"; and Mr. Carnahan, "Famous Men of Mathematics." Besides carrying on their regular activities as tutors for students who need help in mathematics, the club assisted Mr. Carnahan with the Family Frolic puzzle booth and enjoyed a spring party. As has been their custom for several years the Math Club celebrated the close of school with a picnic.

PHILATERON CLUB

The Philateron Club, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Swan, is open to all girls having two hundred and fifty athletic points. Five hundred points are required to be eligible for an office. The girls gave a farewell party for Betty Schneider at the home of Joyce Hesler. They also gave a shower in the home economics department for Mrs. Swan, who was married last fall. They held their annual spring outing last year at the home of Charlotte Grosskopf. In the fall, they had a weiner roast at Gregg Farm.

The Girls' Paddle Club, one of Shortridge's most recently organized clubs, is sponsored by Miss Turner of the history department. The purpose of the club is to afford enjoyment, and to develop skill in the game of ping-pong. Membership in the organization is open to all girls who are interested in ping-pong and who show that they are capable players. The club rents tables at Jim McClure's. Marilyn Scovell is the winner this year of the tournament which the girls sponsor and in which they participate.

PRESS CLUB

The Press Club, made up of members of the Echo staffs, met during the year with Mr. Wilkerson as sponsor. Its purpose is to aid junior journalists. At one meeting Mr. Yeager of the Indianapolis Star was a guest speaker. He helped to create perfumed ads and has had much experience in newspaper work. The third page of our own Echo presented a major problem and club members discussed solutions for it. A banquet in May closed the club's activities for the year.

RADIO CLUB

The Radio Club was organized recently to acquaint its members with the theory and phenomena of radio. The goal of the members is to learn to send and receive the Morse code at the rate of thirteen words per minute. Each member wishes to attain an amateur radio operator's license. The club is sponsored by Mr. Holaday and Mr. Seimers.

RIFLE CLUB

The Rifle Club is composed of girl members interested in the sport of shooting. The club took part in competition with the members of the R. O. T. C. rifle squad two times in the past year, and each team had one victory to its credit. The members received entertainment and instruction from motion pictures dealing with the proper methods of using a rifle. The four positions for shooting are the main points on which the members practice. The club meets every Tuesday in the school's rifle range. The faculty sponsor is Miss Charlotte E. Bruce.

SENATE

The Senate affords an excellent opportunity for any Shortridge student who is interested in the functions of government and its problems. Since its founding in 1887 under Laura Donnan, it has become an established Shortridge tradition. Russell V. Sigler is its present sponsor.

Due to the present war situation, the past year has been an important one in the Senate's history. They passed laws declaring war on Germany, Italy, and Japan, and established a war labor board. Another law passed this year abolished capital punishment in the United States.

Laughter, music, patriotic decorations, and sponsor, Miss Mary Pratt, typify the Social Committee. This year their dances have been particularly gay and successful. The Pigskin Prom highlighted the football season. At the annual Family Frolic, their dance was one of the chief attractions. The Defense

Stomp featured a drawing for defense stamp prizes. Shortridge social life reached its peak at the Bluebelle-Uglyman dance in April, when students chose the most popular boy and girl from candidates nominated by the Social Committee.

SPANISH CLUB

The Spanish Club, sponsored by Miss Hazel Whisenand of the modern language department, was made up of students who wished to go further in their study of the Spanish language and those countries in which it is spoken.

The Senatus Populusque Romanus, which means, by the way, the Senate and the Roman People, is composed of Latin students interested in the pursuit of that subject after school hours. To raise funds for the annual scholarship prize, the members presented the movie, "Elizabeth and Essex," which was enjoyed by many students. The one hundred dollar award was given to the person receiving the highest grade in a test conducted by the Latin department. The members were entertained at the meetings by interesting guest speakers. They enjoyed a Christmas party and a picnic in the spring. Miss Josephine Davidson is sponsor of the club.

There are twenty members in the Technology Club who, under the sponsorship of Colin E. Lett, follow up their interest in engineering, and seek to prepare themselves for college work of a mechanical nature. At their meetings every Thursday in the projection room, they listen to fellow members and to guest speakers who explain the different phases of the mechanical world. They visited the Roscoe Turner Aeronautical Corporation in the spring.

GREEK CLASS

There is only one course in Shortridge where the students can honestly say, "It's all Greek to me." This is the two years' course started each fall under the direction of Miss Josephine Davidson. It is, indeed, one of the outstanding differences between Shortridge and other high schools, for ours is one of very few which offer work in Greek.

The Greek course is invitational and open to juniors who have made A's or A pluses in previous Latin courses. These students acquire a reading knowledge of Greek and a strong foundation for better understanding of the English language and vocabulary. The studies include grammar, Xenophon's "Anabasis," and the first six books of Homer's "Iliad." Since many eastern colleges cover this material in three years instead of two, it is customary to grant six credits for the two years' work.

Shortridge has always maintained as one of its traditions an interest in Latin and Greek. Mr. George Hufford, principal at Shortridge from 1892 until 1902, taught Greek himself and promoted interest in the subject. After his retirement, Miss Ellen G. Marthens took the class and continued to teach it until she retired in 1940. Mr. George Buck, during his former years as principal, was an enthusiastic supporter of the Greek class.

"During this season, we had forty-one decision debates, and I am sure that my debaters will agree with me that no school in all those forty-one debates equalled the performance of Shortridge," said Charles R. Parks, debate coach at Arsenal Technical High School, in a letter to Clarence C. Shoemaker, Shortridge forensics' sponsor, after Tech had won the state championship.

The season began this year for Shortridge at a tournament held at Wiley High School, Terre Haute, where a squad of eight Shortridge debaters was successful in seven out of twelve debates.

In the district competition in the Indiana State Debating League after initial losses were sustained with Washington High School and two with Technical, it was clear that the district title could no longer be won. Thereupon, the lineup of the teams was changed frequently to let others have the experience. Further losses were met in debates with Crispus Attucks and Rushville. The following participated at various times on the teams: (left to right) Row 1—Allen Moorman, Alan Levinson, C. C. Shoemaker, coach; Harvey Harris, Dick Kiser. Row 2—Ned Hendrickson, Elizabeth Josey, Ruth Ann Hamilton, Marilyn Mueller, and Pat Rudolph. Jon Henry Rouch, who does not appear in the picture, was on the varsity team.

The question debated this season was — Resolved: That all able-bodied male citizens should have one year of full time military training before attaining the present draft age.

SPECIAL SPEAKERS

Shortridge again was very active this year in special speaking activities in the community and state. One of the most important was the Community Fund Drive in which Ruth Ann Hamilton, Elizabeth Josey, Joan Dearmin, Bill Nordyke, and Jon Henry Rouch took part.

In state contests Jon Henry Rouch was the Shortridge representative in the State Oratorical Contest held at Wabash College on February 21, and Elizabeth Josey and Allen Moorman were the Shortridge representatives in the State Extemporaneous Speaking Contest held at DePauw University on Saturday, April 18. In the State Discussion Contest held at Indiana University, April 10, two first place positions were won by Carolyn Jones and Calvin Hamilton. Patricia Rudolph and Bill Lodwick also participated in this contest.

WE'LL REMEMBER . . .

by Emily Smith

The popular songs all tell us about those little things that make us remember. "A steamship ticket to romantic places," they say, or "a ride through the park." However, after we leave Shortridge, it won't be a trip to a romantic place that we'll remember, or a ride through the park. No, it won't be that.

When we were Freshmen . . . so very small and insignificant . . . but so very loyal . . . attending all the football games and then watching, awed, as the gridiron heroes walked around the halls . . . hurrying . . . hurrying . . . hurrying . . . Was there ever a Freshman who didn't hurry? We'll remember how we opened our Blue Books for information and studied the plan of the building so we could find our class rooms . . . and that awful day when we started to leave the cafeteria early without a pass . . . that loud guffaw and those cries of "Freshie!" still ring in our ears!

And then that day when we were no longer Freshmen, but STALE Freshmen! And we could hoot at the others and feel oh, so superior! We'll never forget that first big Tech game and our victory in it . . . and that first time our names were on the third page . . .

Our Sophomore year went fairly slowly. We weren't Freshmen any more, and no one made fun of us. But we weren't Juniors yet, either; we were just what we were—Sophomores . . . We found out that we didn't have to pay all our Echo installment at once, and that, really, the smaller the payments, the more fun it was (except for the agent) . . . And we heard Salom Rizk, the Syrian, in auditorium that year. As he stood up there and made us laugh one minute, only the next we fought to hold back tears, we began to realize just what it is to be called an American and to attend a school where we have the friends we want and to say the things we think. Christmas carols were sung in the halls that year, beautifully, and the little trees in the cafeteria added to the festive spirit. The Christmas Echo came out and everyone wanted everyone else's signature, because that was the thing to want . . .

Then suddenly, we were somebody! We were the Junior class with elections and meetings. We joined clubs that year and went to their initiations. We saw plays at the English Theatre, and we had pitch-in dinners and parties after school . . . we started going to all the big dances, and we knew the people who were candidates for Bluebelle and Uglyman. We spent a week-end in Terre Haute with the Drama League members, and we played bridge by flashlight coming home on the bus. Shortridge won the sectionals in 1940 and we cheered until we were hoarse . . . We started going to the Parkmoor after school, and we attended all the night games . . . Spring vacation we went on hikes and out of town; we danced till our feet moved without directing . . . and when we got back to school, everyone laughed when everyone else said, "I'm glad to get back to school to rest up!"

We had our Vaudeville that year, and, although we would admit that there had been other Vaudevilles, we would not say that there had been better Vaudevilles. It was OUR Vaudeville and it was good. The Press Club had a banquet, and everyone laughed till they suffered from that proverbial ache in the side at the mutual "razz-ings" by teachers and students of teachers and students . . . it was all friendly, and everyone felt better acquainted after that. . .

Then came a summer vacation when we all lived in anticipation of the big year. And we'll remember that year long after other events and years have been forgotten. We'll remember it because we were seniors and we owned the school . . . at least we acted as if we did. We were excused the eighth and we sat at cafeteria tables and sang loudly . . . we knitted (that is, we girls did) while the boys sat by and watched. It was our class that starred at the football games; it was our class that did the loudest yelling in the bleachers—anyhow, we thought so. We walked around the halls with confidence and showed our passes nonchalantly. We spoke to everyone in the halls. We worried about our senior pictures. The Home Room representatives fought out weighty battles such as whether to have a six-item liner. The senior colors committee met and remet and, after mind-changing, decided upon blue and navy as the senior colors. We went to the senior party and laughed at all the clever quips and gifts and drank deeply and ate heartily of cokes and potato chips . . . we danced and danced . . . We were proud of our class officers, and they had parts on a Shortridge radio program . . .

We gathered together in groups, laughing, and read "They've Got Me Covered," and then, on that fateful day, December 7, we gathered together with serious faces and listened to grim radio reports . . . and the Echo had a special edition with the President's speech, and America was in the war, and we were seniors and knew that it will be our generation who will pay . . . and we were intensely patriotic . . . we bought defense stamps at the bookstore . . . some of us bought bonds . . . we gave pencils to the U.S.O. and we gave pennies to the Red Cross . . . we read through the papers carefully . . . and we started seeing the names of Shortridge graduates who gave their lives to their country . . . and we were proud. We made up slogans about our part being to stay in school now so we could be the trained men and women of tomorrow's world . . . and we began driving less and walking more because tires were rationed and cars were no longer sold . . .

But even though the war was always there behind us, we could forget it sometimes. We were young and we were seniors and the whole world awaited us . . . We had our senior play and it was fun to watch our friends on the stage. We saw the candy machines installed in the cafeteria, and we worked in the chemistry labs and walked casually through the halls even if we were late to class . . . We looked back on the year and remembered the funny Hallowe'en "party," complete with witches and prophecies on the stage . . . and the beautiful Christmas auditorium of America's first year at war and our last year at Shortridge. We had a big senior week . . . we scrawled autographs in Annuals, we went to the Vesper services, and we worked in the Class Day fun . . . we laughed at the giftorian's gifts and reminisced with the historian . . .

It was our class that saw the departing of the old principal and the coming of the new . . . it was our class that was graduated first by this new principal . . . We'll remember that hot June night when all dressed with such care and walked down the aisles to "Pomp and Circumstance." We'll remember the speeches and we'll remember the feeling of that "sheepskin" in our hands . . . we'll remember our graduation dance and the graduation breakfasts that followed.

No, it won't be a trip to a romantic place that we'll remember, or a ride through the park. Instead, we'll remember the incessant clattering of the hall lockers . . . the eversteady shuffle of feet . . . the appreciative sniffs of everyone as he passed by the home ec rooms . . . We'll remember when we really began thinking about Milton's beautiful phrase, "They also serve . . ." We'll remember our valiant struggles with Caesar and Virgil, and those seventy-five lines of French we did . . . we'll remember that geometry problem the whole class slaved over and the history discussion on the effects of World War I . . . We'll remember that person who sat across the aisle in reference and hummed "Stardust," off-tune . . . and those notes we passed across a room, via six or seven people, so our friends could read such a vital message as "Wait for me after class . . ." We'll remember the patient pause in most class room discussions on the south side of the building while the street car rattled by . . . and the constant din in the cafeteria that sometimes made us forget and start shouting at home during dinner . . .

We'll remember the campus in its earliest and barest days and later on, when it was an attractive green place and oh, so inviting during those hot days! We'll remember field trips our class took through The Indianapolis News and we'll remember working late over the Echo on the afternoon of a big game or a class election . . . We'll remember the window displays and the bulletin boards . . . We'll never forget all those Form 23's we filled out . . . we'll remember the joy of meeting friends in classes on the first day of the new term . . . and the lines in the bookstore at the beginning and end of each term . . . and the study halls we cut . . . and the books we lost . . . and that sonnet for English that we labored over . . .

No, it won't be a romantic trip that we'll remember, or a ride through the park. It will be all these little things that made up our four years at Shortridge and that made Shortridge ours . . . It will be those things that we'll remember . . .

IN MEMORIAM

At last the blow has come. "The loved one" Campbell is leaving. Truly we mourn. Regrets in his down—every hair in place—ready smile—one of the truly Shortridge personalities. Yes, the blow has come. He's caught in the draft.

Dr. Trol was rather disappointed in the outcome of the finals trial. Not because he was placed, but because it ended in nine or less a draw. There was fine dramatic demonstration by various members of the Senate. But, as you might have expected, their hot air all went for no good purpose, but to heat up the room. (I hope I don't start another libel suit.)

Yesterday was a sort of off day for

CHRISTMAS ECHO

Each year for the past thirty years, Shortridge students have been greeted before the December holiday season with the Christmas Echo. This past year was no exception. The editor of the latest publication presented what might be well termed "the best Christmas Echo yet."

A very fitting cover first met the reader's eyes. A pretty girl, dressed in the garb of Santa Claus, held in her white fur-mittened hands a card, which said, "Merry Christmas." The cover was drawn by Helen Harper.

The Christmas Echo was edited by a staff composed of the editors of the Shortridge Echo (Fall Semester, 1941). Emily Smith was editor-in-chief. Other editors were Max Tuttle, literary; Bill Lodwick and Harvey Harris, feature; Allen Greer, photography; Joyce Dean, personals; Patti Cain, poetry; Fred Flickinger and Dick Kiser, sports; and Phyllis Grams and Betty Jane Heassler, art.

Members of the faculty who supervised the printing of it were Miss Nora Thomas, editorial sponsor; Miss Jane Messick, art sponsor; Walter Geisler, circulation manager; and Harold Irby, production manager.

J. Dan Hull, principal, extended his greetings in a message, "To the Youth of Shortridge."

Several Fiction Club members had their short stories published in the Christmas Echo. Among them was "Mogley, The Tale of a Monkey," by Leah J. Schneider. This story won the Fiction Club prize as the best one submitted this year.

Famous Shortridge students were given worthy praise by Bill Lodwick in "Star Dust."

"The Shortridge Band," by Harvey Harris, listed the accomplishment of our nationally known group.

"Vox Pop," by Joyce Dean; "Preview Patter," by Marilyn Mueller; and "A.M.," by Max Tuttle, all weekly features of the Shortridge Daily Echo, appeared in the holiday book.

CORRESPONDENCE CLASS

Members of Al J. Kettler's Journalistic Correspondence Class enjoy the privilege of being in the most informal course in Shortridge. The students write Shortridge news for the Indianapolis daily papers and for seven neighborhood weeklies. This year the class has also had charge of compiling a service file, in which the names of all former Shortridgers serving in the armed forces of the United States and her allies are listed.

The new addition to the list of duties of the correspondents was the compilation of the service file, in which over five hundred names were listed during the first three months of war. The files were published daily in the Echo.

Two people are not in the picture. Emily Smith, of "Barbie" fame, left Shortridge in January to go to the University of Arizona, and Bill Segar, ex-sports liaison writer, who left at mid-semester to go to Indiana University Medical School.

PRINTERS' PI

The Printers' Pi is organized by students in the printing classes. They write and set up their own stories and articles for a newspaper which is published two or three times a semester. From this practical experience the boys interested in printing learn type-setting and the make-up of a newspaper. The type is set up by hand in class and the pages are put together after school. The students understand the mechanical side of journalism after the publication of this paper. They improve greatly after seeing their own mistakes in print. The paper is under the direction of Harold Irby. Printing is the only machine shop work which Shortridge offers.

The Annual

This year's Annual was born in the Shortridge office on October 8, 1941, about five o'clock, when it was first known that Joyce Dean had been elected editor of the 1942 Annual. John R. Kuebler coordinated the un-coordinatable. Mrs. Mary Dye Beach racked everyone's brain, including her own, for the literary copy. H. H. Siemers and Robert C. Grubbs photographed our many clubs and committees. Under Miss Essie Long's direction, the art staff drew everything but the contracts, which they left to Joel Hadley. Walter Carnahan supervised the finances. And, finally, all this reached Harold Irby for printing.

One of Joyce's first ideas was that the theme most appropriate for Shortridge was music. Then, along with other defense articles, it was decided to feature the launching of the U. S. S. Indiana where our band paraded their new uniforms. Max Tuttle, photography editor, executed the novel idea of candid shots on the senior panels. Anne Winger, in charge of getting senior portraits together, did not go crazy in spite of all indications. Barbara Evans cheerfully arranged and rearranged the liners of all Seniors. Allen Greer capably filled Emily Smith's shoes as literary editor when she unexpectedly took off for the University of Arizona. Ruth Ann Hamilton sang out her orders as musical editor, while Evelyn Petersen sought out the records of all clubs. Patty Crews' ability is expressed in the art editorship. The clever legends scattered throughout are by courtesy of Bill Patrick. Ed Stephenson handled the boys' sports, while Betty Graves was editor of the girls' sports, and Elinor Sanders spent hours as copy editor. Marcia Smith fell to with a will as proof editor and put on the finishing touches. Then, last, and as usual not least in importance, was Bob Buckler, who bore the brunt of selling our 1942 Annual to you.

Field Trips

Seven o'clock on Saturday mornings this spring has found many a Shortridge bird enthusiast on the trail in search of a glimpse of feathered plumage. The tours, under the guidance of Miss Pauline Vonnegut, Miss Mildred Campbell, Howard Wright, or Donald Klopp, are centered on some park or wooded area of Indianapolis each week. The pictures on the left show a group of students inspecting the situation at Lake Sullivan under the direction of Donald Klopp, of the biology department.

Passing of an Era

by James Mitchell Smith
("Snuffy")

In these days of fluid drive, hydromatic clutch, electromatic and vacuum shift, I feel that every high school student should receive careful, precise information as to the care and manipulation of a Model T Ford. I feel qualified to give this information, for I have owned and operated (off and on) one of these vehicles for a period of two years. Mr. Ford made my car in 1923. It is one year my senior, for I did not appear upon the scene until '24.

It is best to approach my car whistling some light air (I usually find a Strauss waltz satisfactory). Such attention puts it into a good mood. I stroll around my horseless carriage, giving each tire a gentle kick. I generally dust the headlamps with my handkerchief. By these actual physical contacts with the car I let it know who is "boss."

Henry provided my car with a running board, but wishing to be up to date I seldom use it, preferring to spring into the driver's seat like some western cowboy mounting his steed. Once in the driver's seat I optimistically step on the starter. After several minutes of lack of co-operation from the battery, I get out and use the crank. The motor sometimes starts after the first twelve turns. After it has started, I shift into low. When the car has attained sufficient momentum in low gear, I shift into high. The speed can then be controlled, to a certain extent, with the spark and throttle. Riding this way one has an air of superiority, for the driver sits a good two feet above the seats of common cars.

The feet have nothing to do, but they can be dangled out of the door, propped on the dash board, or left on the floor. I find the latter is best in case I have to apply the brake suddenly.

My Model T is seven feet tall, has no bumpers, and is stubby. Long ago I removed the doors to insure proper ventilation. The missing doors make it convenient for the passengers to circulate between the seats and the running boards.

It is quite a thrill to be at the wheel of my black sedan when its red wheels are turning at a terrific rate. I like to fill it up with my friends and drive around the Fole in the summer. It is nice to stroll out of school at 2:30, step into my car, and drive off with a roar of the four cylinder engine.

I am told that a few years ago many Model T's were parked around our school. I fear they are a vanishing species, like the great auk and the passenger pigeon. My Model T is the last of its kind at Shortridge.

Football In Review

The Blues, coached by Robert L. Nipper, opened their season September 19 at Crawfordsville when they displayed a strong running attack with a sterling defense to crush the Athenians 19-0.

The Southport Cardinals were the Blues' next victim, falling by the count of 24-7 in a night game on the Cardinals' home field.

In their only out-of-state game of the year, played at Withrow High School in Cincinnati, Ohio, a brilliant last period rally enabled the Withrow Tigers to subdue the Blue Devils 12-7. Once again Shortridge's opponent scored in the last second of play, only this time it meant defeat. Shortridge's only score came in the second period when Casselman crossed the line and Rogers converted.

The fourth game of the year was the first home game against the Jefferson (Lafayette) Broncos. The Blues won easily 7-6, rolling up eight first downs to the Broncos' one. Hi Rogers' kick was the margin of victory. This game was played without a single penalty for sixty minutes.

The next game of the year, also played at home, was an almost typical Frank Merriwell story of a terrific come back against overwhelming odds. However, it turned out wrong for Shortridge. Led by Emil Sitko, the Central of Fort Wayne team became the second set of Tigers to claw the Blue Devils, this time by the basketball score of 26-20. Sitko scored two touchdowns himself, passed for the other two, scored Central's two extra points, and intercepted several passes to stop Shortridge threats.

Casselman and Allerdice were brilliant for Shortridge and would have been great if Sitko had not been there to overshadow them.

Muncie's Bearcats were next for the Blue Devils and in a night game at Muncie, Birchfield D. Sutton T. Corbin J. Jelliffe B. Rice B. Kerbox R. Williams B. Hilken

the Satans bowed 26-0.

Playing Cathedral at home, the Satans broke their losing streak of two, by crushing the Irish 31-0.

In the eighth game of the year the Blue Devils scored their second straight victory of the season against city opposition by defeating the Broad Ripple Rockets 18-7. This set the stage for the city series championship battle with Tech, both teams being undefeated in city competition and the Greenclads unbeaten all season.

Shortridge dominated the first half, but could only garner two points as the result of a safety when Hilken and Freihofer downed Jack Hanna in the end zone. However, the potent East Siders ruled during the last half, scoring early in the fourth period to earn their first undefeated season.

In retrospect the Blues scored 128 points to their opponents' 91; Casselman led the scorers with six touchdowns; Kerbox had five; and Allerdice four. With Mr. Nipper as coach, Shortridge fans eagerly await the coming season.

Reserves

With one loss, and a tie in the hands of Manual's Redskins, the Satan reserve squad tied with the Eastsiders of Tech for the mythical city diadem. "Knute" Rouch's proteges promise to bolster the '42 Satan eleven with their many sophomore and junior stars.

Bill Schlensker, Bud Thompson, and Eddie Wolfley led the Reserves in the backfield, while Tom Haggard at end, "Rube" Leventhal and Brooks Rice as tackles, and "Pedro" Parker and "Lindy" Lindenbaum, guards, helped hold the line against the city's reserve might.

The Blue Imps continued last year's excellent record by attaining another defeatless season, and again annexing the city Freshman championship. Under Coach Tom Woods' tutelage the freshmen opened their season with a blazing 21-0 whitewashing of the Manual Rhinies, and continued in the same style to rack up a perfect record.

Bob Klein, at left half, paced the Frosh with 68 points, to break the freshman scoring record, while Charles Hawthorne at full-back shared scoring honors. Jimmy Ross and Bob Thompson were outstanding in line play.

Swimming Team

For the first time in recent years, swimming was introduced to the Satans' sports calendar when an eleven man team coached by William Merrill was entered in the state swimming meet at Furdue, February 21.

With little practice the hastily organized Blues managed to take fifth place in the state wide competition sponsored by Purdue University and held under Indiana High School Athletic Association rules. Major Willis, with his second in the fancy diving, led the Satan scoring, while Roddy Davis and Bill Lawson also made points for the Blue Devils.

Dave Gastineau, organizer of the team, left for Michigan University before the meet. Members of the Satan splashers were Sumner Procter, Frank Ward, Bill Lawson, and Don Pine, free style; Roddy Davis, breast stroke; Major Willis, diving; and Harry Chambers, back stroke.

BOYS' BASKETBALL

The '41-'42 Blue Bucketeers, coached by Kenneth Peterman, suffered more reverses than any other Satan squad in history. After a long slow start the Devils began to show their true Shortridge form, when following a string of five defeats they upset a favored Columbus quintet, 29-24. Gene Ingle inspired the Satans with his wild shooting spree racking up eleven points during the chaotic third period.

The Tech fracas was quite an upset for the Blues although "Chuck" Hunt tallied six points for the event.

In the Cathedral duel the Irish took the Satans for their second city defeat of the season, and the next night in Jeff of Lafayette's back yard they lost to a terrible score, 46-25.

The city tourney was also a disappointing event because Manual trimmed the Blues for the first time since 1936.

The second and third triumphs of the season were over Howe and Rushville. Exciting games each night gave the Blues their only two-win week-end. The Howe game was a thriller with a tight score of 21-20. In the Rushville event the Blues swished the net more than any other time of the season, with a score of 42-20, leading 20-0 at the end of the memorable first quarter.

The Crawfordsville game was another up-set, although Chuck Hunt and Gene Ingle each scored nine points.

In the Lebanon scrap the Satans tallied another moral victory to their list, led by Bernie Casselman with a high score of seven points for the game, when the Devils dropped a one point decision to the potent Tigers.

The Manual Red Skins tried for a second triumph over the Blues but Bruce Hilken led the Bucketeers to a victory over the Southsiders, as high man with nine points, in a 29-26 thriller.

One of the hardest fought games of the year was the 40-37 loss to Lapel in which tall Chuck Hunt led the scoring with fourteen points. Although the Bull Dogs were as far as 13 points ahead of the Satans at one time during the game, the Blues won another moral victory over Lapel.

Another bad set-back was that of Anderson when the Red Skins were 8 points ahead at the half, and 23 points ahead at the end of the game. The Blue Devils' only letterman, Bernie Casselman, tallied seven points for the fracas. Although the Satans fought a hard game, they lost to a tremendous score of 45-22.

When the Satans played Beech Grove in the Sectionals on February 27, they lost by a very close score of 29-23. The high point man of the duel was Bruce Hilken, with 11 points.

Although the Blue Devils won only four out of eighteen games this season they fought their hearts out in every game. We all hope for better luck next year, and with Kenneth Peterman at the helm, a turn-about is inevitable.

TRACK

Coach Don R. Knight's call for track aspirants was heeded by some eighty enthusiasts. Among this group were two returning senior lettermen, dashman Russell Imbler and distanceman Bill Strawmeyer. Imbler was very consistent in winning his speciality, the 220 yard run, in dual meets, while in the city he pulled down a fourth place. Strawmeyer was just as steady in his favorite, the 880 yard run. Bill has built up quite a reputation for himself due to his "kick" which he turns on in the last half lap to win many a race. In the city meet it was just such a sprint that won him a well deserved first place.

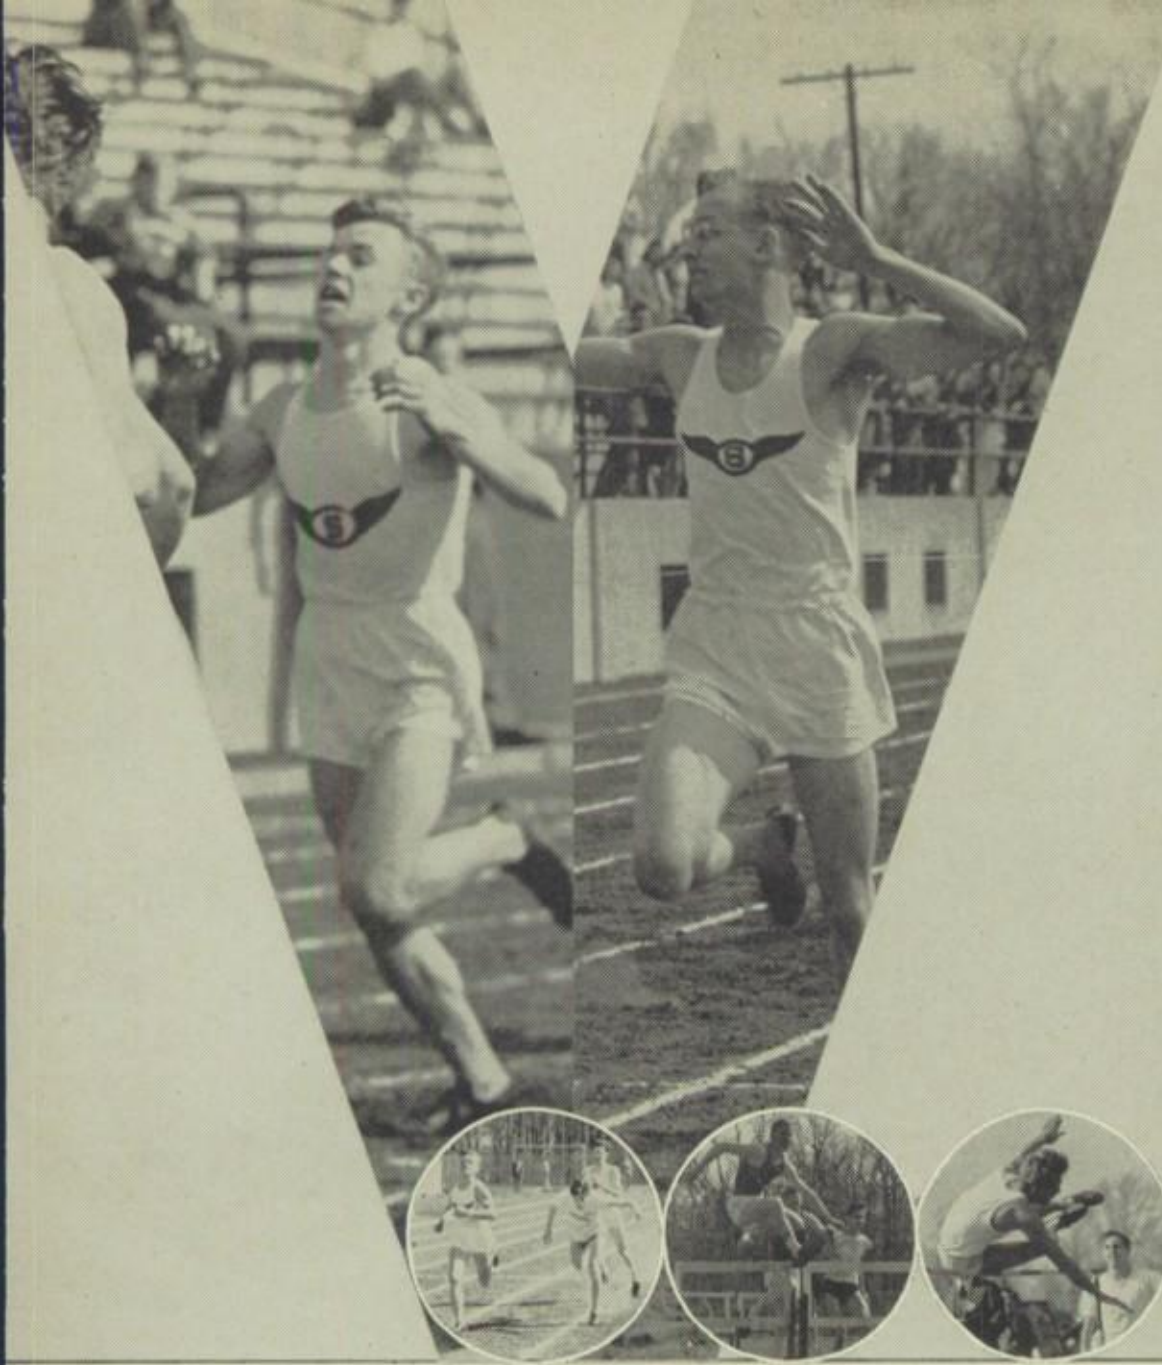

Bill Zaring came through well this spring in the 440, posting a very fine 53.3 seconds in the Manual meet. The hurdle department was handled this year by two newcomers to Shortridge track, Fred Flickinger and Douglas Horth. Flickinger favored the lows and had a 25.3 jaunt to his credit. Horth ran the lows, turning in his best performance in the city meet when he took a fourth, while Flickinger copped a fifth place.

The department in which the squad was strongest was the relays. The mile relay team of Dan Pratt, Bob Ragsdale, Tom Capehart, and Bill Zaring went undefeated this season, having carried off top honors in four dual meets, the Southport relays, and the city meet. The half mile quartet did not fare quite so well, but the team, Bill Schlensker, Tom French, Fred Flickinger, and Russ Imbler was a threat all season.

In the field events the Devils have won their share of honors. The pole vault was met by Doug Horth and a sophomore, Cecil Freihofer. The high jump was taken by Bud Schrader, who reached a score of 5' 4" during the season. George Finney made his bow in the broad jump, as did Bruce Hilkenne and Jim Allerdice in the shot put.

As for the team as a whole, its record is not quite up to past years. The squad has participated in six meets. They opened the season against Ben Davis with a 58½ to 49½ victory. The Blue tasted defeat a week later against Crawfordsville, by a score of 61½ to 55½. Then came a disastrous three-way meet with Southport and Jeff of Lafayette, in which Shortridge placed third. In the Southport Relays the Satans gained seventh position in a field of sixteen, taking one first place. The city meet was next, and after an afternoon's work came away sporting the fourth place ribbon. One week later Manual proved too much and took the last dual meet of the season from the Blue Devils by a 65 to 52 count.

In the sectionals, on May 16, and on a very slow track, Bill Zaring carried off a first in the 440 yard dash, Bill Strawmeyer took a second in the 880 yard run, and Fred Flickinger won the 200 yard low hurdle. Russ Imbler took a second in the broad jump.

The mile relay team remained undefeated, and took first place. The team consisted of Tom Capehart, Dan Pratt, Bob Ragsdale, and Bill Zaring .

The Felixmen were represented in the state meet by the seven men who qualified in the sectionals.

Freshmen Track

Coach Tom Woods' freshman track squad opened their season by dropping a dual meet to Washington, 80¼ to 54¾. The rhinies journeyed to Tech and to Howe next, only to lose by scores of 74½ to 34½ and 54 to 52, respectively. On their home track they did much better, taking Manual into camp by a 77 to 48 score. The Imps grabbed off a third place in the city meet to close their season.

The outstanding performers throughout the season were Larry Stuart, who posted a new freshman school record in the 200 yard low hurdles with a 26 second trip, and the half mile relay team composed of Klein, Perrine, Wark, and Stuart. Their best effort was a very speedy spurt of 1 minute, 42 seconds.

Girls' Basketball

The advanced basketball team this year was under the supervision of a new member of the athletic department, Miss Mary Crites. After several weeks of practice in intramural games, the following girls were chosen for varsity: Rosemary Wanner, Louanna McCreary, Betty Carr, Barbara Wheldon, Pat Potter, Jo Ann Stelzel, Lois Cochran, Joyce Hesler, forwards; Jane Haramy, Peg O'Donnell, Phyllis Ehrhardt, Ida Mae Payne, Jo Ann Lawson, Peg Shively, Shirley Braun, and Betty Graves, guards.

The team played three inter-school games this year. One was with Washington High School, and two were with the Indiana State School for the Deaf. The game with Washington was exciting from the first minute of play until the final whistle blew. The Shortridge team led by a small margin until the last second of play when Washington pulled ahead and went on to win by a score of 19-18. The first encounter with the Deaf School was played there. The game ended with the score 30-17 in their favor. The Shortridge girls avenged this defeat, however, on their home floor, winning by a score of 21-13.

HOCKEY

The varsity hockey team, coached by Mrs. Thelma S. Clarke, met Washington High School in the season's first encounter, and defeated them for the third consecutive year, 4-1.

Their second game was a hard fought contest with Butler in which the Shortridge girls held their opponents to a 4-4 tie.

The following were selected for the team: Betty Alderson, Sally Davis, Virginia Esten, Jane Haramy, Betty Lou Smith, and Joan Ober, forwards; Jo Ann Stelzel, Carolan Liebrich, Ruth Ann George, Phyllis Ehrhardt, and Betty Graves, halfbacks; Louanna McCreary, Rosemary Wanner, Betty Carr, Suzanne Schaub, fullbacks; and Helen Unversaw, goalie.

Toward the end of the season the team went to Richmond where they saw the South Shore professional team play Earlham College.

The girls' athletic department sponsored six baseball teams this past season under the direction of Mary Crites and Thelma Clark. All games were intramural in opposition except the game of May 21, 1942, with the Indiana Deaf School on the latter's field.

Girls participating on the teams include Betsy Sinker, Pat Bond, Frances Brockman, Lois Cochran, Eva Covert, Pat Gall, Betsy Goodwin, Emily Greenland, Phyllis Hobbs, Mary Lacy, Betty Nicholson, Mary Nicholson, Peg O'Donnell, Ida May Fayne, Phyllis Peterson, Frances Phipps, Suzanne Schaub, Peg Shively, Joan Stelzel, and Helen Unversaw.

Team standing for intramural competition was as follows:

- TEAM 2 — FIRST PLACE
- TEAMS 3 AND 4 — SECOND PLACE
- TEAMS 1 AND 5 — FOURTH PLACE
- TEAM 6 — SIXTH PLACE

Tennis

This September, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Kathryn Swan, sixty-four enthusiastic girls competed in the annual tennis tournament. The matches were played on both public and private courts with the winning of two out of three sets determining the victory.

After Louanna McCreary had eliminated Betsy Goodwin by a score of 6-1, 6-0, and Peg O'Donnell had defeated Betty Jo Koss 6-4, 6-2, McCreary triumphed over O'Donnell 6-3, 6-2, to capture the girls' title for the third consecutive year.

Another Louanna McCreary in the making is Betsy Goodwin, who, although a freshman, reached the quarter-finals. Not only is there Betsy, but many other girls who promise to make next year's tournament an exciting one.

Joyce Hessler's team, undefeated in nine games, was the winner of this year's intramural volleyball tournament. The girls played every Monday and Friday in the gym, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Kathryn Swan.

Since three teams were tied for second place, it was necessary to hold a play-off, resulting in Phyllis Ehrhardt's team placing second, Betty Carr's third, and Barbara Wheldon's fourth.

Each girl on the winning team received seventy-five points toward her athletic sweater and an S. H. S. monogram.
